Padlock Suits Against Thirty N. Y. Cabarets

Broadway's White Light District Dealt Hard Blow When Buckner Starts Padlock Suits For Violation of Prohibition Law—Well Known Places on List.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Oct. 20.—Broadway's famous White Light district was dealt a staggering blow today when United States Attorney Emery R. Buckner started padlock suits for violation of the prohibition law against thirty cabarets, restaurants and smart supper clubs.

If the district attorney's suits are successful, it practically will mean the wiping out of that wide domain of music and mirth made famous by the "big butter and egg men" from the west.

Such well known and heavily patronized places as the Del-Fey Club, the Hotsy Totsie, Jack and Jills, the Halfmoon, the Lido Venice, and the club Ritz, were on the long list against which padlock proceedings were instituted.

Trials Late In November.

The district attorney will bring all thirty cases to trial at the earliest possible moment. Under the rules of the courts, however, this cannot be done before the end of November.

Buckner, a new and hard hitting district attorney, struck consternation into the ranks of the proprietors when he brought padlocking actions against 14 places in the White Light areas shortly after he assumed office. Since that time his office, assisted by state and local investigators, have maintained unremitting warfare against drinking in the uptown supper clubs.

In announcing his action against the thirty places in the bright light district today, Buckner revealed "inside" information as to what his investigators learned at the various places they have had under surveillance.

Del-Fey Most Difficult.

The Del-Fey Club, the district attorney said, was the most difficult of all to enter, "admission being only by card or by a Bertillion system of identification."

"We have information," said Buckner, "that a pipe line led into the cellar of the Del Fey, through which all liquors other than bottled goods was delivered."

Arrest Abe Attell.

Abe Attell, former featherweight champion who figured prominently in the "Black Sox" world series baseball scandal, often had been seen at this club and Buckner revealed, "was arrested on the night of October 12 in the act of carrying into the club a case of champagne." Attell is now held in bail by the federal authorities.

Expensive Business.

It was expensive business getting information at the Del Fey Club. Orders for any liquor other than champagne are frowned upon, Buckner said, but his agents did manage to buy whiskey at $10 a pint, after paying the $3 cover charge before any conversation was begun.

Texas Guinan is the "hostess." She recently sent to the "insiders," according to Buckner, an announcement of a party at which the guests of honor would be "three of America's foremost screen stars." The announcement, Buckner said, contained the boast:

"It's New Year's Eve every night at the Del Fey."

At the Camouflage, a high class and expensive cabaret, liquor is sold, according to the district attorney, only by bottle and those wishing a Scotch highball must purchase a pint of whiskey for $10.

Game Cock Most Elaborate.

The Game Cock was one of the most elaborately furnished and expensive places visited by the investigators.

"In the basement of the Game Cock is a men's dining room, the door of which is kept constantly locked and customers are admitted either by their own keys which they carry, or if, without keys, and properly identified by the doorman," said Buckner. "The door opens automatically when the doorman pushes a button upstairs. In this room every kind of liquor is served."

Old Fashioned Bars.

An old fashioned bar was in full operation at the Bordaise restaurant, Buckner stated. The same kind of a brass rail bar prevailed at the Hotsy Totsie Club, "with two or three bartenders in attendance."

The district attorney said that during the investigation that resulted in the filing of the suits there was a marked distinction as between the investigation inaugurated by him at the time he took office which resulted in the proceedings against 14 prominent places. During the present investigation, Buckner said, some of his representatives were able to secure liquor until they had been introduced or otherwise identified. In the previous investigation that formality wasn't needed, you got your liquor readily "on general appearances."

More Room in P. O. Branch.

More room for the employes at the Lucerne Branch Post Office station on Fair street is being added by extending to the front the money order and registry department and stamp window. New cabinet work to correspond with the old is being installed by Schwarzwaelder of Chichester. Growing business at the Kingston station has made it necessary to enlarge the working room.

Federal Estate Tax Fight On

Fight to Repeal Federal Estate Tax Launched by States—Texas Delegation Says Texas Will Be Forced to Pass Law Equal to Federal Law.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Oct. 20.—The fight by states to secure repeal of the federal estate tax was launched today before the House Ways and Means Committee drafting the new revenue law.

A delegation from the Texas Legislature first appeared and demanded that after January, 1926, the power to tax estates be invested exclusively in the state governments.

"Unless the federal law is repealed the state of Texas will be forced to pass a state law equal in its taxes to the federal law in order to save money to the state," declared Lee Satterwrite, speaker of the Texas House.

State Senator R. A. Stuart said the state legislature had declared for repeal this federal law which was passed as an emergency measure.

"The federal government is entitled to an income tax but is not justified in taking the estate. Some of the estates in Texas are encumbered fifty per cent," Stuart said.

Representative Hull, Democrat, Tennessee, suggested that the states should pass a uniform estate tax law and that the federal estate tax should then be repealed. He said that the federal government could get along without this tax.

Secretary Mellon previously said the repeal of the federal inheritance tax would result in a reduction in revenue of about $100,000,000 annually.

CHINESE REBELS WANT TO WRECK CUSTOMS CONFERENCE

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, Oct. 20.—Threats of a new civil war in China and the activities of General Wu Pei Pu in particular now appear to be actuated by a desire to wreck the forthcoming customs conference according to reports received today by the foreign office.

Rebel leaders have an apparent desire to prevent China from gaining the benefits of the proposed conference, the reports said.

Feng Tien troops of General Chang Tso-Lin have met Chekiang troops near Chin-Kiang, said a message from Shanghai today. Advances made by the Chekiangs in the occupation of Soochow and other nearby towns have been without combat with the enemy troops.

The Chekiang troops occupied Chin Kiang after the skirmish and moved on toward Nanking, the objective of their advance.

DISCUSS SUCCESSOR TO SENATOR RALSTON.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Oct. 20.—The question of a successor to Senator Ralston, Dem., of Indiana, was discussed at the White House today between the president, Everet Saunders, secretary to the president, and Joseph B. Keeling, Republican national committeeman from Indiana.

Keeling refused to comment on the conference.

Governor Ed Jackson of Indiana is expected to make the appointment shortly. Reports are prevalent here that Jackson himself, former Senator Beveridge, or Saunders, will get the post.

STEAMER STOCKWELL IS REPORTED SUNK.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, Oct. 20.—A Lloyds message from Oran, Algeria, states that the steamer Stockwell, bound from Calcutta to New York and Philadelphia, has caught fire at sea and sunk. No mention is made of the fate of the crew.

Lloyds registry gives the Stockwell as a steamer of 54,634 sailing, bearing the British flag with Newcastle as her home port.

Rob Salesman of Diamonds.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 28.—Uncut diamonds, valued at between $40,000 and $50,000 were stolen from Harry F. Serber, salesman for Watchman and Serber, New York, platinum smiths, while he slept on a Pennsylvania Pullman yesterday morning, it became known today.

Serber had the gems in a satchel which he carried in his berth near his feet. When he awakened at East Liberty it was gone.

Who Has Seen Peter Kearney?

Greenkill Avenue Man Left His Home Sunday Morning, October 11, and Has Not Been Seen Since.

Sunday morning, October 11, Peter Kearney, 27 years old, dressed himself in his best suit of clothes and left his home, No. 135 Greenkill avenue informing his mother that he would return home in time for supper. That was the last seen of him. The mother and friends made diligent search for him and finally on Monday reported his continued absence to police headquarters.

Kearney is employed as a brakeman on the West Shore railroad. He had been home on sick leave. His mother is greatly worried over his absence.

Aged Woman Wanders Away

Mrs. Alfred E. Lord, 70 Years Old, of 102 Spring Street, Missing Since Sunday Morning—Last Seen at West Shore Station.

The police have been asked to search for Mrs. Alfred E. Lord, 70 years old, of No. 102 Spring street, who has been missing from home since Sunday morning. She was seen leaving the house by Mrs. McCullough about 9 o'clock that morning. The last seen of her was half an hour later when a Miss Burhans, a school teacher, saw her on a Kingston City Division trolley car. She alighted from the car at the Broadway crossing.

Inquiries of the ticket agent at the West Shore brought out the fact that he did not remember selling her a ticket.

When last seen she was dressed in black and wore a small black hat. She is quite tall and slender. Mrs. Lord is in feeble health and may not be able to inform any one as to where she resides.

Any information of a woman of her description should be reported to police headquarters as the members of her family are worried over her continued absence from home.

Drafting New Revenue Bill

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Oct. 20.—Fortified with Secretary of the Treasury Mellon's recomendations for a $250,000,000 slash in the nation's tax bill, the powerful ways and means committee of the House set about today drafting the new revenue bill. This measure, when drawn, will incorporate some of Mr. Mellon's proposals, but many of his suggestions are due for the discard, it was stated by both Republican and Democratic members of the committee.

HUB CAP IS FOUND NEAR SCENE OF DEATHS.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Kenosha, Wis., Oct. 20.—Efforts were being made today to locate an automobile with a missing rear hub cap found near the scene of the death of Madeline Latimer, pretty Milwaukee stenographer, and James Sears, Kenosha man, near here last week. The hub cap was covered with a reddish substance believed to be blood on which very clear imprints of a finger are visible.

The hub cap was torn open in a manner which indicates that it had rubbed against some object while the car was being driven.

All cars in the vicinity of Kenosha of the same make are being checked by police.

$1,500,000 Left To Charities

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Miami, Fla., Oct. 20.—Bequests totalling $1,500,000 were made to Miami and Chicago charitable institutions by the late James Deering, prominent farm implement manufacturer of Chicago, whose will was on file in the Dade county court house here today. Deering died at sea September 21, last.

Under the terms of the will, a sum of $500,000 is placed in trust to be used for the maintenance of a charity ward in the Miami City Hospital. The sum of $500,000 each also was bequeathed to the Children's Memorial Hospital and the visiting Nurse Association of Chicago.

Powers Did Not Shoot the Hen

A verdict of no cause of action was returned by the jury which heard the evidence in the action brought by the state against Michael Powers, to collect a penalty for having shot a hen pheasant. The jury was out but a few minutes Friday afternoon and then arrived at a verdict. They returned a sealed verdict at the opening of supreme court Monday afternoon. Frank W. Brooks appeared for Mr. Powers and a representative from the attorney general's office appeared for the plaintiff.

Two complaints brought against the City of Kingston have been dismissed by the court without costs. Both actions were brought for injuries sustained by falls on icy and snow covered sidewalks. Corporation Counsel James Jenkins moved for a dismissal of the complaint in both actions and the court granted the motion in both cases. The two actions were Lena Jacobson, plaintiff, against the City of Kingston, Henry Klein for plaintiff, Judge Jenkins for the city and Edith A. Ricks, plaintiff, against the City of Kingston, defendant. The same counsel appeared in this case.

Deep Sea Diver In Esopus Creek

Water Board Employs Diver Who Worked on Sunken Submarine S-51 That Was Rammed Off Block Island—Repairing Leak in Water Main.

One of the deep sea divers who was at work on the sunken submarine S-51, rammed by the City of Rome and sunk with a loss of over thirty lives off Block island several weeks ago, has been engaged for the past week repairing a leak in the water main where it crosses over the Esopus creek for the Kingston water department.

The diver is placing a sleeve around the pipe where the leak developed, and it is a long, hard job, although not particularly dangerous. The diver who has been working in the Esopus creek is said to hold the world's record for deep sea diving. He left today for New York on another job, and another diver has been sent here to complete the work.

CAMBO APPEALS FOR MOROCCAN ABANDONMENT

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Madrid, Oct. 20.—Continuance of the Moroccan campaign "will make military action eternal and will prevent internal reconstruction," declared Francisco Cambo, Catalonian leader, in an open letter to General Rivera, director today.

Cambo's appeal for abandonment of the Moroccan campaign is significant as it is understood that he intends shortly to collaborate with the Directory in politics.

"Drunk" Rumors Anger Officers

Reports Carried by Passengers of Comanche That Crew Was Intoxicated Denied by Officers—Lawler is Still Missing.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Jacksonville, Fla., Oct. 20.—Officers of the Commanche were angered today over reports that members of the crew were intoxicated when fire broke out on the Clyde liner last Saturday night and burned to the water's edge. These reports were carried by a few passengers aboard the vessel.

Chief Mate Wilson, the next in command to Captain Curry, told International News Service he was on duty on the bridge when the fire broke out and that he did not see a drunken man, or smell liquor in any form.

"The reports are absolutely untrue," he said.

"The report is absolutely a lie," snapped First Assistant Engineer Perkins of Boston. "I was on duty in charge of the engine room at the time and I did not see a drunken man on the vessel."

Second Assistant Engineer Norris of Jacksonville, repeated the words of Perkins.

Lawler Still Missing.

William Lawler of Winthrop, Mass., today still was missing from the list of survivors, according to an official report made to the United States customs house here today by Captain Edward Curry of Montclair, N. J., master of the vessel.

In his official report, Curry gave the number of passengers who sailed on the vessel as 71 and the crew as 84. He said that Lawler was the only passenger missing and that all members of the crew had been accounted for.

The ship was thoroughly and properly equipped and in seaworthy condition, the captain reported.

Charges Crew Was Drunk.

New York, Oct. 20.—Charges that every rule of the sea was violated by a terrified negro crew, mad with whiskey and terror of the roaring inferno beneath their feet, were made here today by survivors of the Clyde liner Commanche, which burned off the coast of Florida Saturday night.

The passengers charged that the maddened crew pulled passengers out of life boats to make room for themselves and their luggage, and refused to lend aid to passengers swimming about in the water while they themselves escaped in the lifeboats.

James A. Moore was elected chairman of a group of outraged survivors who asked Clyde Line officials to reimburse some of the poorer passengers for their losses.

PITTSBURGHER SUED FOR $500,000 BY ACTRESS.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Pittsburgh, Oct. 20.—Charging breach of promise, Miss Anna Caldwell, New York actress, had on file in federal courts here today a suit against John W. Hubbard, millionaire Pittsburgh manufacturer, asking $500,000.

In a statement accompanying the suit, Miss Caldwell asserts that on January 10,1922, Hubbard agreed to the marriage, which was to take place in Atlantic City. The following April, she received an engagement ring, the plantiff alleges.

Jail Has Cost $140,240 But $45,760 Is Still Due

County Bonds Were Issued For $93,000 to Pay For Jail, But Interest Eats Up Equal Amount of Taxpayers' Money—How County Debt Has Been Reduced By Republican Board of Supervisors.

While Governor Smith and the Democratic party politicians are urging the voters of New York state to vote on election day for the proposed constitutional amendments to issue bonds of the state of New York for one hundred million ($100,000,000) dollars for construction of public buildings and other public improvements, and to vote for another bond issue of three hundred million ($300,000,000) dollars for eliminating grade crossings, there are many people in Ulster county who will take pencil and paper and figure what the cost of bonds has been to the taxpayer.

Jail Bonds as Illustration.

They will use the Ulster county jail and the bonds issued to pay for its construction as a concrete illustration of the cost of bonds to the taxpayer.

The Ulster county jail bonds bring the bond question home more forcibly than any general talk about bonds, because the Democratic party is in favor of bonding the future for public improvements, and because the Ulster county jail is the last county building to be erected under a Democratic county administration through a Democratic board of supervisors.

Three Bond Issues.

The Ulster county jail has been completed and in use more than a quarter of a century. Ulster county bonds amounting to $93,000 were issued to pay for it. The county has paid $50,000 principal and $90,240 interest and still has outstanding jail bonds amounting to $43,000.

There were three issues of Ulster county jail bonds, as follows:

First Issue, 1900, to pay for jail lot, $10,000, and for jail and furnishings, $40,000; bonds payable March 1, 1925.....	$ 50,000
Second Issue, 1901, to pay for jail and furnishings; bonds payable March 1, 1926	30,000
Third Issue, 1903, to pay for completing jail; bonds payable March 1, 1928	13,000
Total bond issues.....	$ 93,000

Cost to Taxpayers.

The rate of interest of all the bonds was four per cent per annum, so that the cost up to this time of the Ulster county jail to the taxpayers of the county of Ulster, instead of being $93,000, has been as follows:

First Issue, paid March 1, 1925	$ 50,000
Interest on same, 25 years at 4 per cent.....	50,000
Interest on Second Issue, 24 years, at 4 per cent..	28,800
Interest on Third Issue, 22 years, at 4 per cent....	11,440
Total payments	$140,240

Taxpayers Still Must Pay.

But the taxpayers must still pay the principal of the Second and Third Issues, and the interest thereon, which will be as follows:

Second Issue, due 1926...	$ 30,000
One year's interest on same	1,200
Third Issue, due 1928....	13,000
Three years' interest on same	1,560
Yet to be paid.....	$ 45,760

So that on the first of March, 1928, when the last of the jail bonds shall have been paid, the county will have paid in principal and interest the sum of $186,000 for the Ulster county jail instead of the $93,000 for which the county issued its bonds.

Long Term Bonds Costly.

There is nothing to prevent a Democratic board of supervisors—if there should be one in Ulster county again—from again issuing long term bonds, as was done for the Ulster county jail. At present money rates, the bonds would have to bear more than four per cent interest in order to get a ready market, unless they should be sold at less than their par value. In any event, long term bonds are a costly proposition to the taxpayer. The Ulster county jail bonds could have been issued so they would have been paid by installments annually and by this time the entire issue could have been paid, with a consequent saving of interest. Ulster county taxpayers will have paid not only the principal sum of the bonds but an equal amount in interest when the bonds are finally paid in 1928.

Long Term Road Bonds.

The board of supervisors at about that time with a majority of Democratic members, also issued bonds for highway improvements which, in view of the life of the roads constructed at that time, seem to have been for an unreasonably long term.

For instance, the board of supervisors of 1902, which passed the act providing for the third issue of jail bonds that were issued on March 1, 1903, passed an act to issue bonds of the county for $22,000 to pay for the county's proportion of the cost of constructing the following sections of state road:

Ulster and Delaware turnpike, section 3.

Saugerties and Woodstock turnpike, section 1.

Ulster and Delaware turnpike, section 2.

Saugerties and Woodstock turnpike, section 2

Kingston and Rifton road.

Shandaken and Hurley road.

Of the $22,000 bonds issued, the sum of $2,000 became payable each year beginning with 1904, so that the last of the bonds was not paid until 1914 although the roads were constructed in 1902-03.

Last Year of Democratic Control.

The last year of Democratic control of Ulster county through the board of supervisors was in 1905, and among the bonding acts passed by the board of supervisors that year was one for $12,000 for paying the county's proportion of the cost of constructing the Kingston-Ellenville state road from the village line of Ellenville to the town line of Rochester, the last of which bonds was not paid until 1912. The same board also bonded the county for $14,000 to pay for repairs to the county poor house at New Paltz, the last of which bonds was not paid until 1913.

County's Bonded Debt Then.

In that year the report of the county treasurer of Ulster county showed that the bonded debt of the county was $811,000, and that the county in the following year must pay $32,440 in bond interest.

Only One Bond Issue Since.

Beginning January 1, 1906, the voters of Ulster county gave to the Republican party a majority of the board of supervisors, and they have kept that majority safe ever since.

During the years since the voters decided to have a Republican board of supervisors, highway construction has been carried on, improvements have been made to the Ulster county poor house and other county buildings, and county property generally is considered in better condition than ever before.

But during all the years of Republican control of the county since the 1905 election, there has been only one issue of Ulster county bonds, because the Republican majority of the board of supervisors and the Republican officials have insisted on a "pay-as-you-go" policy, instead of piling up huge annual bond and interest charges.

The single issue of county bonds since the Republican party has been in the majority in the county legislature was in 1923, when a bond issue was determined to be the wisest course because of the fact that the amount of county bonds and interest falling due that year was $53,680—an inheritance of boards of supervisors more than quarter of a century ago. For that reason, county bonds were issued for $65,000 to pay the county's proportion of the cost of highway construction, but instead of spreading the issue over many years by small annual payments, the board of supervisors provided for its payment at the rate of $5,000 a year.

Bonded Indebtness Reduced.

At present the bonded indebtness of Ulster county is $272,000, as compared with $811,000 in 1905, the last of Democratic control in the county, and the annual interest bill is $10,337.50, as compared with $32,440 in 1905.

Has Ulster county suffered meanwhile by having a majority of Republicans in the board of supervisors?

COMPREHENSIVE REVISION OF SCHOOL CURRICULUM

Five hundred school systems have entered a cooperative plan for curriculum revision, according to Edwin C. Broome, superintendent of schools for Philadelphia, writing in School Life, a publication of the Department of the Interior, Bureau of Education. The time has come for a comprehensive nation-wide revision of the curriculum, Mr. Broome says, and the department of superintendence of the National Education Association has appointed a commission to take the leadership in the movement. Not only leaders in education but laymen as well are interested, because the growing cost of education demands every possible saving of school funds, and because of the plain need of saving human energy and time by preventing waste of educational effort.

Hard Job for Smith to Quit

Politics in New York State According to Reaction Among Democratic Leaders—Doesn't Want U. S. Senate Post.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, Oct. 20.—Governor Al Smith is going to have a hard job getting out of politics in New York state.

This was the reaction here today among Democratic leaders, following the governor's declaration yesterday that he would retire to private life at the end of his present term.

It was pointed out that before the governor was nominated for the third time for chief executive of the state, he declared very emphatically that he would not be a candidate. The Democratic leaders, however, went ahead with their plans and forced him to take the nomination. Many are wondering now if this will be repeated next year.

There are some who are convinced the governor will be named by his party to make the race for United States senator against the present incumbent, James W. Wadsworth, Jr., Republican. Close friends of the executive, insist, however, that if there is one political post above all others that the governor does not want, it is the United States Senate.

The governor said he did not intend to raise his hand to win the Presidential nomination, but at the capitol it was declared that this did not mean that friends of the governor would not be busy from now until the opening of the next national convention in an effort to have him named the Democratic standard bearer in the nation.

Before the governor leaves the capitol, however, he plans to have a real show down fight with the Republican leaders. Already he has charged the G. O. P. legislative leaders with attempting to double cross him on the $100,000,000 bond issue for public improvements and the $300,000,000 prosposal for grade crossing elimination.

Next week the governor will speak in Buffalo, Rochester and Syracuse for the constitutional amendments. After that he will go to New York to remain until election. He will then return to the capitol, clean up the state business and then take a month's vacation, probably at Sea Gate.

APPEAL TO SPORTSMEN TO GUARD AGAINST FIRE

With the autumn hunting season getting under way in the Northeast and in the South, the Forest Service, United States Department of Agriculture, issues an appeal to all sportsmen to guard against forest fires.

Ordinarily, say forestry officials, a great number of devastating forest fires are caused each fall by hunters. These fires not only destroy valuable timber but also the better forms of game animals, and thereby defeat the plans of the hunters themselves.

Those whose duty it is to guard forest lands from fire are usually apprehensive of the fall hunting season. From bitter experience these men have learned that hunters are frequently careless with matches, smoking tobacco, and camp fires. A great many sportsmen's associations have for years taken measures to prevent this carelessness by their members. Other clubs and organizations are following suit.

In fact, the time is rapidly approaching when hunters everywhere will seek the woods with full knowledge of forest fire conditions, and these hunters will be of invaluable assistance in protecting the country's forests rather than being the agencies through which so many fires are started.

The Federal government employs its rangers, guards and lookouts to protect the National Forests. Most states likewise have fire wardens and rangers with police powers. Hunters should take warning and be the first to protect the woods. They should erase from the records any reference to forest fires traceable to hunters.

A PRACTICABLE METHOD TO TEACH ILLITERATE ADULTS

Five million persons in the United States who are more than 10 years old can neither read nor write. To meet this situation, the General Federation of Women's Clubs, the American Legion, the National Education Association, and the United States Bureau of Education more than a year ago called a conference in Washington of persons interested in the reduction of illiteracy. Every state was represented and an intensive study was given to the solution of this national study was given to the solution of this national problem. An outgrowth of the conference was the appointment by the Commissioner of Education, by request, of a representative committee to recommend, subject matter and methods of teaching native and foreign-born adult illiterates. The work of this committee is embodied in Bulletin No. 8, 1925, Elementary Instruction of Adults, by the chairman, Charles M. Herlihy, Massachusetts State supervisor of alien education. It comprises a simple and practical method of instruction in reading, writing, conversation, spelling, and simple arithmetic especially adapted to adult illiterates.

"I will not follow my radical daughter any farther"

"When she was still a little girl I made a solemn promise to myself that she should not leave me behind," this very modern mother writes. "I kept up with her in sports, though it involved a struggle. When she came back from college with radical ideas on poetry and art, I put away my old favorites and adopted hers. When she brought long haired young men to the table, when she voted for Debs, I swallowed my pride and followed along.

"But I have reached the boundary line. She has ideas about marriage that I will never, never accept. I can not follow her farther."

Use Soft Coal Or Suffer Cold

...ty of Substitute for Anthracite, Which Will Soon Be Gone, Governor Smith Says—Strike Should be Settled by Arbitration.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 20.—Anthracite coal in New York state is fast dwindling away and substitutes must be used by everyone, according to verbal reports made today to Governor Smith by members of his ...ite coal commission.

"I have not received any written reports on the coal situation but members of the coal commission have told me that it will not be long before the supply of anthracite coal in the state is gone" the governor said.

The governor, however, did not appear to believe there would be any real suffering during the coming months if people generally would use more substitutes. He said he understood there was plenty of soft coal and substitutes for anthracite but that people did not like to use them unless they were forced to do so.

The governor is keeping in touch with General Charles L. Berry, chairman of the coal commission and Dr. Matthias Nicoll, Jr., state commissioner of health, a member of the commission.

Pointing to the fact that strikes in this state often had been settled by a board of arbitration, the executive said he often wondered why such a procedure would not work well in the coal strike.

"We settled the needle strike in this state some time ago through a board of arbitration," the governor added. "The members of the board were of such high character that the strikers and the employers realized justice would be done. Sometimes I wonder if the coal strike could not be ended by the same method."

The governor said that when the coal strike was called he was under the impression it would not last longer than six weeks or two months.

Alleged Slayer's Identity Known

Schenectady, N. Y., Oct. 20.—A New York city gangster will be arrested within 24 hours and charged with the murder of Police Captain Albert L. Youmans, who was killed here a year ago, Chief William H. Funston said today.

The identity of the alleged slayer was revealed, Funston said by William Ross, alias "Willie the wop" who is held in Albany on a charge of robbery.

Ross also told the authorities he had been offered $7,500 to kill Chief Funston.

PORT EWEN.

Port Ewen, Oct. 20.—The Sunday school of the Methodist Church will hold a food sale at the grocery store of Harry Jump on Broadway, on Friday afternoon, October 23. Everyone interested in the school is invited to attend this sale. Proceeds for the benefit of the school.

The regular monthy business meeting of the Young People's Christian Endeavor Society will be held at the home of Mrs. Charles Niece on Main street this evening, Tuesday October 20, at 8 o'clock. A large attendance is expected as the election of officers will take place at this time after which organization and plans for the coming year will be discussed.

The food sale under the auspices of Hope Temple, No. 80, Pythian Sisters, will be held Friday, October 23, at Spinneweber's Garage instead of the 23rd, as previously announced.

Mrs. Arthur Townsend, who has spent a few days with her daughter, Miss Sarah Townsend, in New York City, has returned to her home on Main street.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Decker, who spent the week end with Mrs. Decker's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Schleede, on Stout avenue, have returned to their home at Staten Island.

CHICAGO "WOLF" FINDS BENEFIT IN PRISON

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 20.—John W. Worthington, "wolf of LaSalle street," who willed his millions to his daughters and came from Chicago to the Atlanta Federal penitentiary to die, may have been a bit hasty, prison physicians said here today.

Worthington, brought here on a stretcher, near death of chronic diabetes and vowing that he would not live a week, is responding to the insulin treatment, and his condition is greatly improved," it was learned today. Doctors were hopeful that he will live out his two year sentence and leave the prison in much better condition than when he entered.

Worthington, who began his spectacular career with the proceeds of a $5 bet on a race horse, became wealthy through promotional and financial operations, but finally was given a two year sentence for misuse of the mails. He figured in two sensational escapes from federal officers and after being a fugitive in Mexico several years recently returned to Chicago. Near death, made his will and surrendered.

Embroidery Adds Color to Black Satin Frock

Smart frocks for fall are developed in black satin in either severe all black, which is always smart, or with touches of bizarre embroidery to give a colorful air. The sleeves—tight at the shoulder, then very full and tight again at the wrist—are an attractive feature of this frock of black satin.

Notes of Interest to Fashionable Dressers

Women who really want to be well dressed today watch the way leaders of fashion wear what they buy rather than what they pay for it, asserts a fashion correspondent in the Chicago Daily News. The two-piece jumper dresses of moderate cost are among the most popular garments for fall. They are being extensively purchased by college girls who set the styles for the younger set, but their chic is not measured by their price. The smock jumper is one of the most popular models at the moment.

The British women's tailors have set a difficult mark for their competitors on this side of the Atlantic to shoot at in the new double-breasted tweed coats for fall. These garments are close fitting and reach about to the knees. The skirts show a distinct flare in the front, while the back is without a vent.

Scarfs continue to be worn with practically every costume. One reason is that these accessories give the little individual touch of personality, which every costume needs. The large handkerchiefs are being used for this purpose with excellent effect, since they may be tied in countless ways. Bobbed-haired bandits find them particularly useful and business-like.

The decoration of the garter is no longer confined to the English peerage. In these days of short skirts nearly every woman wears garters and they are decorations also. As a result, many of the newer girdles and corsets are made without hose supporters. The girdles are usually of elastic webbing or perforated rubber.

The younger set seems likely to wear the older skins this fall so far as fur coats are concerned. There seemingly has been no loss in popularity of raccoon, muskrat, nutria and leopard. Many of the coats are bordered and collared in fox. A combination of the flat haired antelope with beaver is an attractive one.

Tailored Lines Liked for Traveling Outfit

Generally speaking, convention and fashion dictate two vastly different phases of clothes. But, when it comes to a discussion of the traveler's wardrobe, they seem to co-operate and reach a happy medium.

A certain formality of attire is the best rule to be governed by when traveling either by rail or by boat. And, there is nothing better than the tailored lines, either in light weight or heavy, according to the climatic conditions. Tweeds, if not too heavy, are ideal fabrics—cheviot, repp, poiret twill and flannels are always appropriate. These models necessarily have a touch of masculinity, although they are smart, trim and inconspicuous.

For the motor trip one need not be so conservative. A wool coat of brilliant plaids, recommended for wear on the ocean voyage is very comfortable for motoring, especially through the mountains and along the seaside.

Black Velvet Favored for Gowns and Linings

New shades of green, claret, bandor, a distinctive tone of blue, and black are the colors chosen by a Paris house whose models this years are of exceptional interest. Richness is the keynote of the materials employed and in the use of velvet in subtle deep colorings for afternoon costumes is reflected the prevailing trend toward a greater formality than has appeared in the fashions of the past few seasons.

Black velvet suits designed are commented upon as among the most successful of the new models, while the choice of velvet as a lining for wraps of crepe worn over crepe frocks emphasizes the growing fashion importance of velvet in the modes of the present hour.

Henpeck House to Go

Rescues Crew Of Freighter

Liner President Harding Reaches Sinking Italian Freighter In Eastern Atlantic—Liner Raced All Forenoon In Terrific Gale.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Oct. 20.—The first of the rescue ships has reached the sinking Italian freighter, Ignatio Fiorio, in the eastern Atlantic, according to radio advices this afternoon.

The liner President Harding reported by radio to its office here that it was along side the freighter and was standing by to take off the passengers.

The freighter carries a crew of 28.

The President Harding raced all forenoon toward the point where the freighter was in distress.

Messages relayed to the Radio Corporation of America told of the vessel's plight. Her position was given as 1,760 miles east of New York, which would place her little more than a day's sail from Europe.

The Ignatio Fiorio left Montreal October 4 for Mediterranean ports. When Captain Greming of the President Harding received the Italian ship's distress message, his position was a hundred miles away.

A terrific gale made it impossible for him to reach the stricken craft short of six hours sailing.

BUTLER'S LEAVE WILL NOT BE EXTENDED

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Oct. 20.—President Coolidge probably will deny requests to extend the leave of Brig-General Smedley Butler of the Marine Corps, to serve as director of public safety in Philadelphia, it was indicated today.

The president told callers that his position in the Butler case has not changed from last year when in a letter he frowned upon the practice of permitting army or navy officers to head police forces. At that time, he said, Butler's leave would not be extended after this year.

THREATENED MEMBER OF KLAN HANGS HIMSELF

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 20.—Dressed in woman's clothes, James A. Halfoort, 27, a railroad worker, hung himself in his home in Colonie today. His body was discovered by his wife, Ethel, when she returned from a visit with her parents in Troy.

Mrs. Halfoort told the authorities her husband was a member of the Ku Klux Klan and that she believed he took his life because he had been threatened by members.

MOTHER OF EIGHT LITTLE CHILDREN KILLED BY TRAIN

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Troy, N. Y., Oct. 20.—Stephen Vakstzewski, a night watchman, was happy when he started home this morning. He whistled thinking of his eight little children at home.

Crossing the railroad tracks near his home he saw the body of a woman. He turned the body over and was horrified to find it was his wife—dead. Mrs. Vakstzewski was struck by a train while on her way to the home of a friend.

It seems that the Sphinx, after keeping a mysterious silence for five or six thousand years, is at last cracking under a strain that would break the average woman—or man—in a month.

Babe Ruth won't make home runs for less than $50,000 a year and Jack Dempsey has to have $25,000 merely to train for a fight. Can such Croesuses really live the simple life on which primacy in athletics and pugilism is supposed to depend?

If Tammany should ever get control of the state legislature it would be nearer a calamity than anything one could imagine. Think over what would be done if the state were controlled by Tammany. Think of the power Tammany would have in various departments.

Irish Republicans have repeatedly insulted the Irish Free State's former minister of defense now visiting this country, hurling volleys of abuse at him and sometimes worse. Perhaps he wonders whether, after all, this country is as free a State as the one he helped to establish back home.

According to the dispatches communism is the real issue in the crisis faced by Great Britain and the slump in trade has created a situation full of difficulty for the Baldwin government. Trade is the life blood of modern nations and nothing causes greater disturbances than a prolonged "slump."

When the daughter of Justice Brandeis recently appeared before the Supreme Court as counsel for a litigant her father temporarily retired from the bench—not in displeasure, it seems, but as a matter of good taste and in the interest of justice. His retreat is described as "dignified as well as masterly."

In Grand Rapids, Mich., an applicant for naturalization was rejected when, asked what the Vice President does, he answered: "He don't do nothing at all." Though not quite correct, the answer shows that the applicant was intelligent enough to take note of a widespread view which even Vice Presidents themselves have shared.

In the Pulitzer prize play, "They Knew What They Wanted," a California Italian, after profiting immensely by the great rise in the price of his grapes, admits that "Probeesh" made him rich but none the less remains of the opinion that "Probeesh is one dam-fool thing." This play was on trial, charged with immorality, but was acquitted by the board of censors.

JUSTICE, NOT CODDLING.

In dealing with the subject of mutual relations between employer and employe, sophists and theorists have worn the word "cooperation" almost threadbare. To promote "cooperation" they advocate give and compromise—on the part of the employer.

Why should it be necessary in order to obtain an honest day's work for a full day's pay for an employer to extend gratuities and coddle his employes?

If employes are dissatisfied with working conditions or wages, they have the same privilege to quit their employment they had to enter it. They are neither conscripts nor prisoners, the gate swings both ways—out as well as in—and if dissatisfied, it is their privilege to quit, or if they are disloyal and loaf on the job, it is the duty as well as the privilege of the employer to discharge them.

Forming unsound ideas as a result of socialistic practices and preachments, it is getting so nowadays that an employe expects to be petted on the back for doing a day's work, and the deluded dreamer feels an employer is derelict and lacking in a proper conception of social amenity, if he fails to pat.

By every rule of right and propriety, an employer is bound to accord fair pay and treatment to his employes; in like manner, employes are bound to render an honest day's work. The upstanding, straight thinking American workman does not want coddling. All he asks is a square deal, fair pay and reasonable hours, and he will deliver the work. It is the crook, the loafer and the slacker who wants petting, pampering, soft jobs, double pay and no work; who never misses an opportunity to knock the business that employs him and who stirs up trouble at every opportunity.

That Body of Yours

HIGH AUTHORITY.

Two Baltimore physicians, Drs. Friedenwald and Morrison, have investigated the cause of stomach and intestinal ulcer in a series of two hundred cases. There were some due to nervous causes, to distirbances of the glandular system and so forth, but nearly one half the cases were due to infection.

Now you are perhaps tired of hearing or reading about the infections that attack the body from within and without, but where outstanding men who have spent their entire lives on the study of the stomach and its disturbances, tell us that infections are the cause of nearly half the cases of ulcer of the stomach, then we have reason to pause and consider the matter.

These infections which may be from bad teeth frequently, from nose, throat, or other parts of the body, get into the blood and so change is nature that the natural stomach juices are likewise changed, and also the walls of the stomach itself. In other words the blood can only manufacture juices or build up cells from the materials that it has in it, and if some of those materials are of a poisonous nature, then the stomach wall when attacked cannot repair itself.

By the removal of the infecting source, by restricted diet, by resting the stomach from muscular and chemical action, the ulcer will frequently heal, and comfort be obtained until some further infection or serious error in diet, wakens things up again at the healed spots. Any infective process from without can likewise infect the blood and cause these ulcers.

However the point to remember is that these infective processes from within and without are very common, and the individuals who develop ulcer usually are guilty of errors in eating.

Carelessness is perhaps the big factor, because it is not always due to overeating.

An overhauling by your family doctor when you have two or three attacks of "indigestion," may save you further suffering and expense.

ROCHESTER REPUBLICANS ORGANIZE CLUB

Accord, Oct. 19.—The Republican rally which was held Friday evening at the I. O. O. F. Hall, Accord, was largely attended. The speakers of the evening were Philip Elting, chairman of the Republican County Central Committee, John Eckert, secretary of the Republican County Central Committee, and the Hon. Joel Brink.

The speakers prevailed upon each voter to exercise his voting powers by putting forth a special effort to get out to the polls this election. Voting should be looked upon as the personal responsibility and duty of each individual.

Later in the evening the Rochester Republican Club was organized.

After the organization was completed refreshments were served and all enjoyed a social hour.

The next meeting of the club will be held in the Accord M. E. Hall, October 31st.

DEMAGOGUE OR PATRIOT.

Not all the martyrs of the American Revolution died on the battlefield or in British prisons. Some of them became martyrs long after the close of the war, at the hands of historians. At least, their reputations have been subjected to criticism which would have meant for them a living martyrdom, had they read the historians.

One of these post-war martyrs was Samuel Adams of Massachusetts. He was "the man of the town meeting," who, more than any other man, organized the New England system of town meetings and committees of correspondence which gave voice to New England's protests against the oppressive measures of George III and his ministers, and who caused that voice to be heard throughout all the colonies. Demagogue, professional politician, political schemer, John Hancock's wire-puller,—these and other characterizations equally choice have been hurled at his memory by a very small group of writers of recent years.

But would a man be likely to fill with demagoguery a private letter to his wife from whom and his family he had been separated for seven weeks, during which he had had no word from them, he being in Philadelphia and his family in Boston. It was under these circumstances that Samuel Adams wrote 150 years ago today, on October 20, 1775, the letter from which the following abstract is given. The letter begins and closes with pathetic appeals for news from home, and tells of his distress because he has had no letters, even though he realizes that his mail may have been intercepted by British spies, or lost. Although his plea for news of home is obviously the purpose of the letter, a generous proportion of it reads as follows, the blank spaces being now unintelligible in the original copy from which this extract as been taken for the purpose of this little chronicle:

"The Affairs of our Country are at this moment in the utmost critical situation—Every Wheel seems now to be in Motion—I am so fully satisfied in the Justice of our Cause, that I can confidently as well as devoutly pray, that the righteous Disposer of all things would————our Enterprises—if he suffers us to be defeated in any or all of them, I shall believe it to be for the most wise and gracious purpose and shall heartily acquiesce in the Divine Disposal—It is an unspeakable Consolation to an actor upon the public stage when, after the most careful Retrospect he can satisfy himself that he has had in his view————or selfish Considerations, but has ever been guided (?) by the pure motive of serving his Country and delivering it from the rapacious Hand of a Tyrant."

Confidence

Art has been aptly defined as "the expression of man's joy in his work."

Advertising may be defined as the expression of the advertiser's confidence in himself.

The merchant or the manufacturer who spends money for newspaper space has faith in his goods and in his service.

Read the advertisements with this thought in mind.

Count every newspaper advertiser as one who offers something for your convenience, your comfort or your service, with firm confidence that his offerings will find favor with you.

Diamonds Rained As He Wished

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Chicago, Oct. 20.—Clifford Harrison was walking down the street one dreaming of diamonds. With admiring eyes he paused at each jewelry window in the business district and a longing glance at the arrays of resplendent gems.

"Oh, if it would only rain diamonds," he murmured as he paused before a particularly pretty window on North Clark street. He had hardly muttered the wish when he was astonished by a marvelous phenomena.

It actually began to rain diamonds!

One of the precious gems fell upon his hat brim, bounced to the sidewalk, and, amid a dazzling shower of reflected light, disappeared into a puddle of water in the street.

When Harrison had sufficiently recovered from his astonishment, he joined the fast-growing crowd in the search for the precious gems. Employees of W. E. Newman, wholesale diamond merchant, rushed to the street and joined in the search. Every inch of the pavement was scoured and all but one of the gems that had been accidentally spilled from the 13th story window were recovered.

Harrison had never believed in dreams, but he was about ready to believe that there was after all a great God of wishes that had heard his half-hearted request.

"I will pay a good reward for the perfectly cut beauty that bounced off your hat, Mr. Harrison," said W. Newman. "But, of course, it has probably played its part in the world as it has restored your belief in dreams."

Nell—"Jack Rapidde has the reputation of being rather fast, hasn't he?"

Belle—"I suppose so, in spite of the fact that he has the reputation of being rather loose."

Farm Bureau Will Hear Coolidge

For the seventh time the organized agriculture of America will assemble to outline its policies and develop plans for the expansion of its industry. The occasion will be the seventh annual meeting of the American Farm Bureau Federation, which will be held in the Sherman Hotel in Chicago on December 7, 8 and 9. At this meeting some 2,000 delegates, representing 1,800 County Farm Bureaus, and the 45 State Farm Bureau Federations, will assemble to consider agricultural legislation, taxation, transportation and many other problems affecting America's eighty billion dollar industry—agriculture.

The importance and significance of this meeting is attested to by the acceptance of President Coolidge of an invitation to attend and address this gathering. Among other distinguished guests will be William M. Jardine, secretary of agriculture, who will also address the Farm Bureau delegates.

The sessions of the A. F. B. F. annual meeting wil lbe held in the new ball room of the Sherman Hotel. All general and sectional meetings are planned to be held in the new twenty-story section which has been lately opened by the Sherman House. In the ball room, where the general sessions will be held, there are seats for approximately 2,000. Opening from it are large lobbies and side rooms which will seat an additional 2,500.

At the time of the annual meeting of the A. F. B. F. there will be installed enunciators of the very latest type, which will make the voice of the speaker distinctly audible to everyone—not only to the 2,000 in the main ball room but to all others in different adjoining space.

Unlucky Fishing Day

In Scotland it is a popular belief that if one goes fishing on Christmas, bad luck will follow through the entire year.

Evans Warns of Wild Borrowing

"Debt is the most destructive agency of co-operative marketing."

That was the keynote of a warning issued this week by Frank Evans, general marketing counsel of the American Farm Bureau Federation, a warning called forth by a plea for assistance coming from a Midwest co-operative which finds itself in difficulty.

"There can be no automatic recovery from indebtedness carelessly created," continued Mr. Evans. "The fact must not be overlooked that the same laborious processes are necessary in liquidating obligations of a co-operative association as are common in business generally.

Reasonable and moderate obligations judiciously created and wisely provided for are necessary and proper but any sort of reckless financing in handling the business of a farmers' co-operative association deserves severest condemnation. It should not be necessary to call attention to these elementary principles but we still have with us those who seem to proceed on the assumption that a cooperative association is not subject to the same inexorable business principles that apply to business enterprises generally.

"There is a long list of principles forming the basis of a cooperative association, some of these are more or less abstract. It is well to consider them all and to understand them all but two simple cardinal principles are of outstanding importance.

"First, keep out of debt. I mean by that, do not incur unnecessary obligations, nor any obligations whatever that are not safely provided for. Avoid the creation of obligations just as far as it is possible to do so.

Second, establish and maintain a sufficient accounting system. That means a system that will reflect at all times the actual condition of the business. The conditions of the business must constantly be available to the members. When difficulties arise, face them at once. No business miracles are possible or even desirable to the well regulated cooperative. Plain rugged business honesty is the best business guide.

"A group of farmers associated together under a cooperative agreement usually possess vast credit and there is a tendency to use it too freely. Guard against this tendency to the utmost."

CURRENT OFFERINGS AT THE THEATRES

"The Tower of Lies" a Metro-Goldwyn production will undoubtedly be ranked as one of the outstanding six productions of the year. The picture opened at the Opera House last night and received the acclaim that audiences all over the country have been giving it. The picture is a screen adaption of Selma Lagerlof's popular novel "The Emperor of Portugalia." At no time have Lon Chaney and Norma Shearer given such a wonderful screen vehicle. There are also the Pathe News, the novelty "Pencil Brush and Chisel" and the comedy "Say It With Flowers" on the same program.

"Beggar On Horseback" is the picture at the Keeney Theater tonight. There isn't a single horse in it, there isn't a beggar in it. It has nothing to do with horseback riding it isn't like "The Charge of the Light Brigade." It isn't a travelogue but it is the gayest and funniest story ever put on the stage or screen, the story of a young composer whose heart is dedicated to a symphony but has to write tinpan jazz songs to keep from starving. Edward Everett Horton and Esther Ralston head the special cast. The usual wonder list of short features include the Keeney News, the novelty and a very funny comedy "The Mysterious Stranger" and a special musical arrangement by Jimmie Connors and Boys.

"A Cafe in Cairo," starring "The Empress of Elemental Emotions," Priscilla Dean, will be screened at the Auditorium tonight.

Never Lasting

Ulster County Bible Society

The 109th annual convention of the Ulster County Bible Society will be held at the Wesleyan Methodist Church at Saugerties Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock. Religious services will be in charge of the Rev. J. C. Coddington. Addresses will be delivered by the Rev. John B. Steketee of Kingston and the Rev. W. Frank Hersh of Saugerties and the Rev. A. de Ruyter of Katsbaan. The secretary, the Rev. H. Smith, will give the annual report of the year's work of the society and the president, the Hon. Palmer Canfield, will give the annual address. There will be special music. The meeting will be open to the public. Preceding the public meeting the directors and trustees will hold the annual business meeting for the election of officers for the ensuing year.

Smith-Mills Debate Thursday

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Oct. 20.—William M. Chadbourne, chairman of the executive committee of the citizens' committee on bond issue amendment, stated today that the interest in the radio broadcasting of the debate between Governor Smith and Congressman Mills at Buffalo Thursday night is so great that the committee has proclaimed the evening "radio party night" throughout the state.

Members of the statewide citizens' committee, which is promoting a campaign of information about the facts in relation to the amendment, have suggested to owners of radio sets in cities and rural districts throughout the state they hold radio parties in their homes and invite friends and neighbors in to hear the epoch making debate. The suggestion met with widespread favor and such parties will be held in every county and corner of the state.

It is estimated that there are three-quarters of a million radio sets in New York state and that at least a quarter or a third of the people of the state will listen in on the debate. It will occur in the Elmwood Music Hall, the largest hall in Buffalo. The debate will be broadcast through Station WMFK at the Hotel Lafayette in Buffalo, and it is probable that Station WGY, Schenectady, will also be linked up. The broadcasting is expected to commence at 8:30.

Electric Night On the Radio

Electric Night will be celebrated on Wednesday evening, October 21, with educational addresses by men prominent in the electrical industry and with musical programs. They will be broadcast from a number of cities throughout the United States.

The date also marks the forty-sixth anniversary of the incandescent lamp, and thus these radio programs, sponsored by various public utility companies and the General Electric Company, for the purpose of creating a better understanding of electrical service to the public, are particularly appropriate for Electric Night.

The following stations will participate with specially arranged programs:

WSB Atlanta.
WEEI Boston.
WMAQ Chicago.
WRR Dallas.
KOA Denver.
KTHS Hot Springs, Ark.
WDAF Kansas City.
KFI Los Angeles.
WCCO Minneapolis.
WSMB New Orleans.
WJZ New York.
KGO Oakland.
WLIT Philadelphia.
KGW Portland, Ore.
KSD St. Louis.
KSL Salt Lake City.
WGY Schenectady.
WRC Washington.

Herbert Hoover, secretary of commerce, and William M. Jardine, secretary of agriculture, will be heard from Stations WRC, Washington; WJZ, New York, and WGY, Schnectady at 8:30 p. m., eastern standard time. A land wire will connect the three stations mentioned.

PROGRESS OF NEW HIGHWAY CONSTRUCTION

The following bulletin shows the highway construction accomplished during the week ending October 16:

Number of contracts under way	171
Number of pavements being laid	53
Number of men employed by contractors	6,100
Square yards of pavement completed during week	122,878
Square yards of pavement completed during season	5,360,479
Maintenance force employed by the state	4,726

The above yardage represents 12.14 miles of completed pavement for the week and a total of 510.98 miles for the season.

Bad weather seriously retarded pavement operations during the past week.

All Chrysler models are engineered against theft by the Fisher patented car numbering system, exclusive with Chrysler, which cannot be counterfeited and engines can be altered or removed without conclusive evidence of tampering.

Just ask yourself what it is you most desire in your car.

Acceleration? Speed? Everyone knows the ease of Chrysler's 70 miles plus.

Roadability? Comfort? No car, no matter how many hundred extra pounds it is burdened with in the effort to obtain greater riding ease, equals the new Chrysler Six in these features due to the low center of gravity and the Chrysler type of rear spring mounting.

Freedom from mechanical attention? The Chrysler Six has a world wide reputation for notably uninterrupted service.

All this the new Chrysler Six at the new low prices gives its owners at half the purchase price of cars presumably having comparable quality—yes, and at far, far less than the operating and maintenance cost of the more cumbersome cars.

We are eager to have you prove all the new Chrysler Six does. Then you'll see why no other car, at any price, affords what has come to be trade-marked in the public mind as "Chrysler Six performance."

A tire that keeps its good looks to the very end of its long service life

The U. S. Royal Balloon not only compares favorably in appearance with any tire when new.

The important thing to note is that it holds its good looks.

Finger marks, grease and mud stains do not show on its handsome all black body.

And the flat "Low-Pressure Tread" wears slowly and evenly.

Because the weight is properly distributed over the entire tread surface, the uneven, disfiguring wear that soon gives a ragged appearance to round treaded balloon tires does not occur.

This and the patented Latex-treated Web Cord construction of the carcass permit the U. S. Royal Balloon to be run at proper cushioning pressure.

There is no need to over-inflate to save the tires.

Thus, appearance, long mileage, comfort and car protection are all provided for.

The man who is riding on U. S. Royal Balloons is enjoying the advantages of "the balloon tire principle at its best."

Cured His Rupture

I was badly ruptured while lifting a trunk several years ago. Doctors said my only hope of cure was an operation. Trusses did me no good. Finally I got hold of something that quickly and completely cured me. Years have passed and the rupture has never returned, although I am doing hard work as a carpenter. There was no operation, no lost time, no trouble. I have nothing to sell, but will give full information about how you may find a complete cure without operation. If you write to me, Eugene M. Fuller, Carpenter, 562 M Marcellus Avenue, Manasquan, N. J. Better cut out this notice and show it to any others who are ruptured—you may save a life or at least stop the misery of rupture and the worry and danger of an operation.

Motorists Get 8 Safety Rules

Telegraph to The Freeman.

Boston, Oct. 20.—Eight "common sense" rules for motorists to keep down accidents were issued by Frank A. Goodwin, registrar of motor vehicles. They are:

"See that your brakes and lights are in good order.

"Start out early enough so that you can 'take it easy.' Start back early enough so that you will not have to hurry home.

"Do not drive after you take a drink of liquor.

"Do not drive faster than conditions warrant.

"Do not attempt to pass a number of cars ahead of you going in the same direction, for you may be forced to cut in by oncoming traffic.

"Do not speed by an intersecting street and expect no one else is coming.

"If the streets are wet, do not go too fast or put on your brakes too quickly.

"Remember that consideration for others on the road is the essence of good motoring."

Goodwin reminds autoists that October is the "death month," having the highest average—78—of any month in the year.

AGRIGRAPHS.

Buy fertilizer cooperatively; and it may pay to mix your own.

October shows most feeds down; buying early may save many dollars on the winter's feed bill.

The winter courses at the State College of Agriculture are tuition-free to residents of New York state.

Grease is better than oil for protecting plowshares from rust when they are stored for the winter, as the grease stays where it is put.

In planning next year's work, try a system which will include several of the crops most profitable in the region over a period of years.

PEOPLE PATRIOTS —NOT PACIFISTS

Work on the Fidac peace program, as the soldiers' call to a peace of intelligent patriotism in opposition to the steadily encroaching tide of Russian internationalism, was the chief business to come before the Fidac congress at Rome, Italy, from September 10 to 18, according to an announcement by Brig. Gen. Leigh Robinson Gignilliat, chairman of the American Legion delegation to the congress.

"Ninety per cent of the people are both patriots and peace proponents, but not pacifists," declared General Gignilliat in a statement outlining the work of the congress. "They will be behind a peace program of patriotism, international friendship and co-operation."

connection with the congress to work out plans for a women's auxiliary to Fidac, were Mrs. Lemuel Bolles and Mrs. Thompson.

Outstanding activities of Fidac in 1925 were: Representation at the Geneva arms conference, closer co-operation with the League of Nations, establishment of a bulletin broadcasting the views and purposes of Fidac, work towards the creation of the women's auxiliary and efforts to ascertain public opinion in allied and former enemy countries, particularly in Germany following the election of Marshal von Hindenburg as President of the republic.

General Gignilliat, who was born at Savannah, Ga., on July 4, 1875, is superintendent of Culver Military academy at Culver, Ind. He enlisted as a major in the army on May 7, 1917. He served on the staff of the Eighty-fourth and the Thirty-seventh divisions. He was discharged at Chicago on July 31, 1919, and was commissioned a brigadier general in the Officers' Reserve corps in 1921.

The general has been commander of William Alexander Fleetwood post of the Legion at Culver, commander of the Indiana department and a member of the national executive committee and of the permanent foreign relations commission of the Legion. He was cited by Pershing and was given the Croix d'Officer de la Legion d'Honneur by France.

Hold On to Federal Insurance Policies

"Hold on to your federal insurance policies," is the advice of rehabilitation officials of the American Legion, citing the case of John Chard as evidence bearing out the wisdom of their warning.

Chard, by requesting a $30 cash settlement of his government 20-year endowment policy when he was discharged from the army in May, 1921, almost lost his beneficiaries $1,000, the full face value of the policy, following his death soon after his discharge. It was only through the tardiness of the Veterans' bureau in mailing the $30 cash settlement check that his beneficiaries were able to collect the full face value of the policy.

Chard died on June 27, 1923. The check for a $30 cash settlement was not mailed until July 13, 16 days later. Comptroller-General McCarl recently ruled that the government must pay the full face value of the policy of $1,000 due only to the delay in mailing.

Medal for Elsie Janis

Col. Elsie Janis, famous vaudeville actress and "sweetheart of the A. E. F." during the World war, was presented with a gold medal by American Legionaires when she played Lincoln, Neb., on a recent vaudeville tour. The medal bears the emblem of the American Legion and the inscription: "With love to our friend and buddy."

Easy to Give Up

It is, as a rule, far easier to sacrifice self—to give up, that is, our moral existence to the first one who chooses to take it—than to fulfill our spiritual destiny, to accomplish, right to the end, the task for which we were created.—Maeterlinck.

Big Demand for Paper Money

America's Demand For Currency Jumped $43,000,000 in September, Making Cash in Circulation Greatest of Any Normal Year.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Oct. 20.—Indicating increasing national prosperity, especially among the business establishments whose success is dependent upon small sales and quick turnover, America's demand for currency jumped over $43,000,000 in September, according to figures made public at the treasury today.

The total of $4,827,000,000 cash in circulation at the beginning of October is the greatest of any normal year in history, only exceeded by the $5,628,000,000 at the peak of post war inflation period, in November 1920.

Figuring the dollars and its buying power the present circulation is far ahead of that of 1920.

Treasury officials are alarmed at the tremendous demand for paper money, especially $1 bills. Circulation of these green backs has leaped more than $40,000,000 in the last six months. Apparently there is no filling the country's insatiable requirement for $1 bills.

Means of meeting this demand are being considered by the treasury, prior to June 30, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Dewey started a campaign to increase the government's stock of paper omney in order to build up a reserve. An additional appropriation had been obtained from Congress to carry out this program.

It developed today, however, that the bureau of engraving and printing, working over time, is hardly able to keep up with the paper money requirement and is making no headway toward establishment of reserve.

Officials explained that to increase the life of paper money it must be "aged" for a considerable period. The country is now using "raw" paper, almost as unsatisfactory as the well known moonshine of the southern mountains in the state in which it trickles from the still.

Dewey hopes to develop an emergency plan within the next few weeks by which the situation may be met.

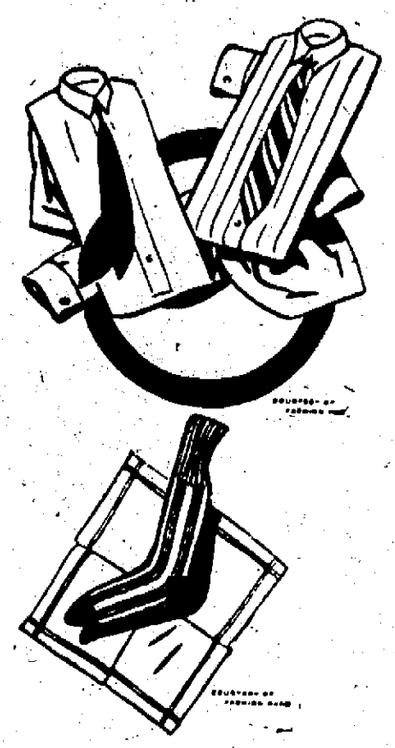
To have good shirts—

you must learn how to buy them



BUYING A SHIRT is more than saying, "I want a shirt size 15." For instance—

It is worth while to remember that the neckbands and collars of Wilson Brothers' Shirts have done practically all the shrinking they ever will do, before you own them. As the neckbands are made of a special fabric that keeps its shape without starching, they don't saw the skin.

Then there is a sleeve-length—with a chance of disappointment unless you know that on well-made shirts the printed size "34" indicates the permanent length of the sleeve after two washings.

To give you room around the chest our shirts are cut three inches bigger there than at the waist, where extra cloth is only a nuisance. The arm-holes, too, are comfortably roomy, and all our shirts (very important!) are full length, to prevent their creeping up and bulging out above the belt. The front tails are cut away, following the line of the thighs, to lessen bulkiness.

Our reversible cuffs are truly reversible, so that nobody but yourself can possibly know they have been turned.

If a shirt fails in any of the points listed above, it stays at the bottom of the drawer wasting the money you paid for it. To avoid having a collection of that sort, you should learn how to buy shirts.

Throughout all Wilson Brothers' Haberdashery you will find the same results of intelligent study in making men well groomed, comfortable and yet economically fitted out.

CRAVATS of twilled silk or satin-jacquard taffeta, $1.50 and $2.00. Others from $1.00 to $5.00. In the smartest men's shops you see cravats such as these. Ask the man who sells Wilson Brothers' Haberdashery to show them to you.

PAJAMAS of printed broadcloth striped in blue, gray, or rose and white. The chap-about-town is as particular aobut his pajamas as his sports togs. In Wilson Brothers' Pajamas he finds fine materials—fine cut—fine workmanship. Prices range from $2.50 to $10.00.

NOVELTY socks of wool or silk-and-wool mixtures, from $1.00 to $5.00 per pair. Many of the most discerning of American clubmen wear Wilson Brothers' Hosiery—for it is the swanky, true-fitting, hard-wearing kind of hosiery such chaps unerringly pick out.

ONE OF the outstanding developments in men's underwear is Wilson Brothers' exclusive Chalet Rib Union Suit, which comes in a wide range of fabrics, weights, colors and designs, and in a complete variety of long sleeves, short sleeves, stouts, etc. The prices range from $3.50 to $6.00. Spring knitting gives this underwear elasticity; special machines give flat seams; proper measurements give good fit. And these things mean comfort—underwear forgetfulness.

A Jamboree at "Y" on Monday

The Fords as Usual Came Out on Top in Basketball Tournament and Are Badged at Banquet That Followed Games.

The Fords came out on top at the basketball jamboree held at the big Y. M. C. A. gymnasium on Monday evening, and at the banquet that followed later in the evening the members of the winning team were presented with appropriate medals for their excellent work.

The jamboree started promptly at 5 o'clock and there was continuous basketball played until the tournament closed shortly after 8 o'clock. The jamboree had been arranged for the members of the Senior Class by Physical Director A. W. Buley. The referees who were kept on the jump during the evening were Thompson and Smith. The timer was Lehner and the scorer Hutton.

After the first round of games had been played many of the teams were eliminated until in the final round the championship simmered down to the Fords and the Studebakers with the Fords winning in the fastest game of the evening by a score of 7 to 4.

The basketball banquet followed in the banqueting hall on the second floor, and before the boys started to put away the fine menu that had been prepared they had their picture "shot" by Lou Merrifat of the Pennington Studio.

Brief addresses were made by Secretary John Porter, Physical Director Buley and several others.

The jamboree proved one of the most successful functions held by the Senior Class in some time.

The members of the various teams who played in the tournament were:

Hudson-Essex—Wesley Thompson, captain; Odell Black, Gordon Fitzgerald, Paul Jordan, Clifford Davis, Edwin Craw.

Studebaker—Chester Dolson, captain; Ben Fein, Charles Yallum, L. Kantrowitz, William Mohr, Leonard O'Reilly.

Overland—Loughran Smith, captain; K. Rutz, Carl Glaser, Dewey Van Buren, James Winters, Phil Katz.

'Headless Swamp' A Deep Mystery

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Newcastle, Pa., Oct. 20.—Countless theories were offered authorities today as possible explanation of the "headless swamp" mystery that has the whole countryside bordering on a state of hysteria.

"Headless swamp," a four and a half mile stretch of marsh land extending between Newcastle Junction and West Pittsburgh, has given up within the last two weeks the decapitated bodies of two men and yesterday the skull of a woman was added to the gruesome collection in the county morgue.

One theory was that a maniac, hiding in the remote sections of the marsh, decapitated the victims and buried their bodies, where they later were found by duck hunters.

Jumper Frock in Fashion Picture

Velvet, Having Touches of Color, Featured by One Paris Maker.

An outstanding phase of the new modes is the importance of gray in tones varied from a pale delicate shade to a deeper tone almost gunmetal in color. Lanvin is said to be responsible for the vogue of gray which appears not only in dinner and evening gowns and wraps, but in charming little afternoon models of tailored genre, in two-piece jumper effect.

In several instances gray velvet is the material chosen and for trimming on the more elaborate models there are touches of gray fur and silver lace, while large flat buttons of cut crystal appear on a simple jumper frock.

Jumper frocks continue to hold an important place in the fashions of the new season. In the originality of their interpretation few models exceed those designed by Nicole Groult, who uses velvet, panne, and crepe de chine in charming frocks usually accented with a clever bit of decoration, such as motifs embroidered in gold thread or in porcelain beads.

One of the most successful models from this house is a jumper frock developed in black velvet with touches of bright red velvet at the neck and sleeves. Equally interesting is another model also of velvet which reflects the feeling for combinations of black with pink in its guimpe of pink

One-Piece Frock in Which Bright Embroidery Is Prominent.

An interesting one-piece frock is of the finest French flannel; it is green in color, and embroidered stitches done in green, yellow, red and other bright colors, add to its beauty.

Fullness in front or at the sides obtained by plaits, narrow godets or shaped panels is a characteristic feature. The plaits are often disposed in steps. Several entirely in plisse frocks are just straight chemises, both for day and evening wear. Many have long, tight sleeves.

The most employed materials are crepe de chine, satin—in black usually—rep and faille. Points and pointed movements, which are so fashionable at present, are fully represented in this collection; a particularly successful model was a navy blue rep coat frock.

Black Frock Returns With Autumn Fashions

The black frock that has been conspicuous by its absence from summer fashions returns with autumn, and from every indication will be even more popular this fall than it has been for several seasons past, according to a fashion authority.

Much of the distinction of these black costumes may be attributed to the beautiful fabrics chosen for their fashioning. Supple crepe back satins, lustrous velvets, crepes with an almost imperceptible weave are all used, and the effects achieved are amazingly smart.

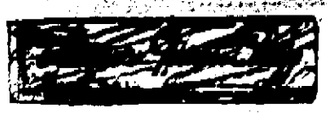
An innovation of the present season is the introduction of touches of a tone of faded pink or old blue into frocks of navy blue or black. This adds a certain youthfulness that is most engaging and contributes greatly to their interest.

For early fall the popular two-piece jumper model appears in several new interpretations, none more charming than a frock of satin with collar, cuffs and gilet of pale pink crepe de chine.

It has within the short time since its introduction achieved a marked success and a similar model of navy blue satin with trimmings of old blue crepe has recently been brought out.

Utilizing the Waste

Remarkable progress in utilizing the waste products of the corn crops, such as corn cobs, stalks and leaves, has been made in the last few years. The list contains 148 products and ranges from absorbents for nitroglycerin to xylose, a kind of sugar.



ROSES FOR THE BOUDOIR ARE GAY AND OF CHINESE INSPIRATION.

Lace and georgette unite to prove that satin, exquisitely embroidered by the Chinese, cannot monopolize the Mandarin coat. Feminine in its color and daintiness, and worn over a slip of finely pleated georgette, it is still distinctly trim of line, and quite a relief from the trailing and beribboned negligees which, of course, will always be dear to the feminine heart.

Many of the most appealing models are cut on these and similar coat lines—not unlike evening wraps, and are also trimmed with fur and dyed lapin or rabbit, applied as a bordering, these taking the place of the marabou that was not so long ago the essence of elegance in the boudoir.

The Mandarin Coat in Ultra Feminine Guise.

Another proof that women are inclining somewhat away from the purely frivolous, is the popularity of printed fabrics in bold designs, which is more in character with the modern woman and her broadened sphere of activities. Last summer will go down in the fashion histories as a summer of prints, and it is logical that, since they must be restricted somewhat during the winter, they should find their way into the boudoir where they are very new.

Since it is impossible to write even a paragraph on fashions without mentioning velvet, these days, this lovely material naturally is drawn into the discussion of hostess gowns and of negligees. Velvet brocaded chiffons give ample opportunity for the indulgence of color harmonies, and are to be found in softly blended or vividly contrasted colorings.

"SUPER SALESMAN" NOT THE BEST SALESMAN

In a discussion of modern selling methods in this week's Liberty, Hugh Fullerton reveals that the "super salesman" so favored a few years ago is frowned upon by present-day experts in merchandising.

"Many merchants and salesmen who, half a dozen years ago, were rated as being up to the minute in methods, are hopelessly out of date now," he quotes the experts as saying. "The trouble is that the public understands 'high pressure' selling and resents the practice. This makes the method useless.

"It no longer is a matter of efficiency for the salesman to say, 'Just try this coat on for size,' thereby getting a man to remove his coat and try on something, almost committing him to buy. Nor is it considered good salesmanship to remove one of a man's shoes and park it out of reach to hold him while you wait on other shoe customers. Those ruses were good in their day—but the public became wise, and a public that imagines it is being tricked is not a buying public.

"A plain, explicit statement of his wants by the customer will effectually balk the scientific salesman. The fellow who goes into a store and says, 'I want a suit; haven't an idea what kind or color.' Price? Well, if I see what I want——' is an easy victim for the trained salesman.

"Nowadays a salesman who finds out what you want, produces it as quickly as possible, limits his selling talk to the quality or style in a few words, and then clinches the sale by pointblank words, sells the most goods."

Hang This Sign ON YOUR DOOR BELL

Years ago, throughout many small communities, "Beware of the Dog" was an old familiar warning tacked on doors and fence posts. Needless to state it was very effective and served its purpose well, whether or not there was any dog in back of it.

But in these days, we find that more drastic measures are necessary than just plain "warnings" to the persistent efforts of the various types of "Bell Ringing Peddlers or Salesmen," who pester the life out of the housewife. For the protection of all local business, they must be forced to quit this nefarious trade of imposing upon the homes of our city, and the only sure way of stopping them is for every home in this locality to refuse admittance or even an audience. Whatever their smooth selling talk may consist of, no matter what "weighty" arguments they may use, always bear in mind the fact that your local stores sell better products at a fairer price every day in the year.

Refuse to be "Flim-flammed" any longer. Hang a "No Admittance" sign on your door today and make up your mind to give a better support to the merchants who are trying to make your town a better place to live in.

Milton, Oct. 19.—Miss Florence Woolsey is learning to play the flute. Miss Woolsey's ability as an organist and pianist is well known here and her many friends hope she will be as successful with the new instrument.

A meeting of the library board of the Sarah Hull Hallock Free Library was held last Friday evening at the library building to discuss subjects in connection with the banquet to be given at the St. James Hall Wednesday evening, October 21, for the benefit of the library fund which is under the auspices of the Maids and Matrons' Club.

Last September W. R. Ordway received a very handsome present of a Hohner Sax. This musical instrument is in the shape of a saxophone, is 18 inches long, has ten keys and two base keys and is considered by musical experts to be the finest toned instrument made. Mr. Ordway has already learned to play the instrument, not only as a solo instrument but also plays it with piano or organ accompaniment. It is considered the most popular solo instrument and is made by M. Hohner of Germany.

A meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society will be held at the home of Mrs. Sarah Woolsey Friday afternoon, October 30.

Group Three of the Ladies' Aid Society held a food sale last Friday afternoon at the Community House. As expert from the Snowdrift Company made crullers, using the Snowdrift for cooking these cakes, which were readily sold. There was a great demand also for other home made cake, etc. The sale was a great success and a neat sum was realized.

Borer Threatens To Destroy Corn

A Warning of Threatening Losses and Methods of Control for The Farmer by The Department of Farms and Markets.

Losses of from 50 per cent to 100 per cent of fields of sweet and field corn from corn borer infestation have become very numerous this season in the infested area surrounding Lake Erie, including many fields in the western part of the state of New York. A number of corn growers and canning factories in New York state have had serious losses this season as a consequence of the corn borer.

Western End of State Infested.

The pest has now advanced from Lake Erie, covering the entire western end of the state, to a line extending north and south through Ithaca, the heaviest infestation being farthest west. Indications point to the possibility of heavy infestation and losses occurring on many farms and over a much wider territory in western New York the coming season than has been true in the past.

Farmers Can Protect Themselves.

The Department of Farms and Markets takes this opportunity through the press and the farm bureaus of the state to issue this warning, so that farmers may take steps immediately to protect their next year's corn crop. It is possible to largely control the attack of the corn borer by a cultural program. The program which the repartment recommends is, as follows:

Recommendations For Corn Borer Control.

1. Sweet cornstalks must be cut at a height not to exceed two inches, within two weeks after the ears are harvested, removed from the field and fed direct to livestock or placed in silo or shredded or burned.

2. Field or silage cornstalks must be cut as low as possible not to exceed six inches in height, and should be removed from the field soon after, if possible. If impracticable to cut cornstalks at the before mentioned height, such stalks must be broken off at a level with the soil surface during the winter, using preferably a heavy pole or metal rail for that purpose, then raked into windrows in preparation for destruction by burning.

3. All cornstalks, corn cobs, and other corn remnants, not including silage, remaining on premises must be destroyed by burning on or before May 15 of each year; therefore, these cornstalks, corn cobs, and other corn remnants, unless finely shredded, should be kept separate from manure piles and away from barn yards.

As the borers winter over and survive in stubble and any corn remnants above ground, we strongly recommend that all stubble and debris be plowed under thoroughly to a depth of at least six inches before May 15 of each year. The practice of seeding on disced corn stubble is strongly condemned. However, under existing circumstances, if cornstubble land must be seeded, without plowing, such seeding should be limited to fields in which the cornstalks have been cut or broken off at the ground level, and all corn remnants removed.

A General Policy.

The above program which the department is recommending, has also been adopted by all of the northeastern and mid-west states and by Canada. It has been outlined after careful study by the leading authorities and workers on corn borer control and eradication throughout the United States. The Federation of Farm Bureaus as well as the Department of Farms and Markets, and the state entomologist were represented at these international and inter-state conferences when the general policy was adopted.

The Department Prefers Recommendation to Regulations.

In some states farmers are required by law to carry out the regulations recommended to keep the insect under control.

If farmers fail to heed the warning and the damage increases as is now threatened, the state may be compelled by farmers in infested areas to enforce radical measures for the protection of all.

Act at Once to Save Next Year's Crop.

At present the greatest loss is sustained in the sweet corn crop, as its value per acre exceeds the field crop.

The increase in area of over 80 per cent in a single season, from 1924 to 1925 in western New York, shows that all corn growers should be on their guard, and if they have any corn borers on their premises, should act at once to save next year's crop.

An illustrated circular will be sent on application.

Reappointment Recommended.

Reappointment of Postmasters James R. Doyle of Kerhonkson and Henry W. Osborn of Ulster Park, has been recommended by Representative Harcourt J. Pratt. The present terms of both will expire in November.

PARTY AT BAPTIST CHURCH ON WEDNESDAY

Members of the Wurts Street Baptist Church and Sunday School will hold a get together party at the church chapel Wednesday evening. All members are invited to attend as the committee has arranged for an evening of fun and entertainment. Refreshments will be served.

On Armistice night, November 11, a turkey supper will be served in the church parlors.

That Thin Knowledge

Required to tell what he knows about Isaac Newton the average person would reply that Sir Isaac was sitting under the old apple tree at Appomattox composing Paradise Lost, when an apple fell from the tree and hit him on the head. He jumped up, crying Eureka! and immediately invented the steam engine.—Spokane Spokesman-Review.

Approve Treaties In London

Publication of Pact Provisions Are Generally Approved by Public Men in London—Few Commentators See Difficulties—Pact Provisions.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, Oct. 20.—England's enthusiasm at the first word of the Locarno agreements was little dampened today after a week-end of consideration and publication last night of the full texts of the pacts.

A few commentators saw the possibility of difficulties, if England and Italy as co-guarantors of the status quo disagreed regarding the merits of "unprovoked aggression" on the part of either Germany or France.

It was also pointed out that England might be drawn into a conflict in eastern European should France go to the aid of either Poland or Czecho Slovakia and the League of Nations later should approve the French move.

The usual critics of the government among the London newspapers were silent, a favorable augury of the feeling engendered by publication of the texts

The treaties were generally approved by public men.

"The agreement is probably the greatest step toward real and assured peace that has been made since the war," Viscount Grey said

"The agreement has drawn the veil across the lurid and tragic past and is a sign that Europe is beginning to look forward," said Winston Churchill, chancellor of the exchequer.

"It is a great thing to have France and Germany in the same peace pact and an even greater thing to have Poland, Czecho Slovakia and Belgium," said Lloyd George. "I support anyone who helped the cause of peace and thank God for the man who cut down the jungle of hatreds and racial suspicions."

The documents published here textually today are the Rhineland security treaty between France, Belgium and Germany, guaranteed by England and Italy, a technical arbitration treaty between Germany and France, a similar treaty between Germany and Belgium, an arbitration treaty between Germany and Poland, an arbitration treaty between Germany and Czecho Slovakia, an agreement of mutual guarantee between France and Poland and a similar guarantee between France and Czecho Slovakia.

Although the security pact will be signed in London on December 1, it will not become effective until Germany becomes a member of the League of Nations.

Pact Provisions.

The security pact provides in parts as follows:

The inviolability of the frontiers of Germany, Belgium and France as fixed by the Versailles treaty shall be respected.

The signatory powers agree that they will "in no case attack or invade each other or resort to war." This stipulation does not apply to the "exercise of the right of legitimate defense" in event of an "unprovoked act of aggression," nor does it apply to military action ordered by the League of Nations.

The signatories agree to submit differences which cannot be settled by ordinary diplomatic negotiations to a board of conciliation and if this board can reach no decision then the dispute will be referred to the league council.

If one signatory alleges a violation of the security pact he may appeal to the league council and if that body determines there has been an "unprovoked act of aggression" all other signatory powers will be summoned to the aid of the complaining party Similar action may be taken if one of the parties to the treaty refuses to submit a dispute to peaceful arbitration.

The pact shall not affect the rights of the nations under the treaty of Versailles, nor shall it be deemed as restricting the action of the League of Nations.

The pact does not outlaw war, for it provides for legitimate war in the event of attack, and Germany has also agreed that if she violates the provisions of the Versailles treaty relative to abstaining from military operation and the de-militarization of the Rhineland, it may be considered an act of war.

A Boon to Mothers

Mothers everywhere who realize the danger to delicate little stomachs of too much dosing appreciate the value of Vicks in treating croup and children's colds

With Vicks there is nothing to swallow—you just rub it on. The body heat releases the ingredients — Menthol, Camphor, Eucalyptus, Thyme, Turpentine —in the form of vapors which carry the medication directly to the nose, throat, bronchial tubes and lungs.

At the same time Vicks is absorbed through and stimulates the skin like a poultice or plaster

Colds go overnight, croup is generally relieved within 15 minutes

Honor From Reproach

Many words used as terms of contempt and reproach have since become titles of honor. Both the Methodist and the Quakers were so called in contempt, as indeed were the Puritans and the Roundheads. It must not be forgotten either that the word "Christian" was a term of contempt, first used in Antioch by the enemies of the new religion.

Danger to the Eyes in Major Industries

That there is hardly an industrial occupation in America which does not add each year to the steadily increasing number of the blind and near blind is the announcement made by the national committee for the prevention of blindness, following an extensive study of eye hazards in industry. Referring to the records of a single insurance company which in three and a half years settled claims involving 1,049 cases of permanent disability resulting from eye injuries, the committee found that 82 eyes were lost in the presumably safe occupations of merchandising, farming and textile manufacture.

"This is further proof," the committee reports, "that serious eye accidents are likely to occur wherever men, women and children are employed. There is no such thing as a really nonhazardous occupation."

The report shows that the greatest number of serious eye injuries for the entire country occur in the metal manufacturing industries. But in Pennsylvania the coal mining industry ranks first as a cause of industrial blindness, and in Wisconsin hand tools are the greatest single cause of injuries to eyesight. One large shipbuilding company had more than 4,000 eye cases treated in its dispensary in one year. The committee recommends the keeping of detailed and accurate records of the nature, causes and costs of eye injuries as the first step in any campaign for the prevention of eye accidents in an industrial plant or in an entire industry.

Cubs to Trade Maranville

Many Deals to be Made This Winter as Big League Teams Aim to Improve Showing—Ivory Market Looks Brisk.

By Telegraph to The Freeman

New York, Oct. 20.—The recent deal between the Brooklyn and Boston cubs is one of many that are reasonably sure to make the winter baseball season one of the most active and interesting in years. The showing of several clubs was so miserable during the past season that they must trade if for no other reason than to satisfy public opinion.

Among the teams that come in this category, beside the Robins, are the Yankees, the Cubs, and the Indians, which are the first to start to build for next year, but the others will not be far behind.

The Cubs, to cite only one example, have Rabbit Maranville, a deposed manager, on their hands, and it is a moral certainty that he will not start the season in Chicago.

Gibson, the former Pirate leader, had trouble with Maranville in Pittsburgh, and kept the Rabbit out of the lineup after he took charge of the Chicago outfit this fall. It is only reasonable to assume, then, that Maranville will be one of the major pawns in the forthcoming winter trading season.

Yanks Get New Stars.

The Yankees are building chiefly through the acquisition of new and expensive players from the minors. But several of the veterans, who will have to make way for these newcomers, are not yet ready to leave the majors. Wally Pipp, for instance, has been supplanted by Lou Gehrig at first base, but Wally is still of major league calibre and several clubs could use him to advantage. Thus Col. Ruppert's club is practically sure to take part in the general bartering.

Up in Boston, where the American League team has pitifully few first-rate players, it is hard to tell what will happen. But Bob Quinn and Lee Fohl will be in the market for some ivory, even if it is slightly shop-worn, for they cannot afford to be anything but active.

Out in St. Louis Rogers Hornsby is looking for a good pitcher and a second-string catcher, and he has virtually announced that he is going to throw that fleet outfielder, Jack Smith, on the market. The Cubs and Braves, the latter especially, should be able to find a place for Smith.

To Rebuild Cubs.

The Cubs had to put up a great battle to get last place in the National League, considering the way the Robins and Phillies finished, but they came through with colors flying. Moreover, the Chicago team has almost no youngsters coming along. With all his millions Mr. Wrigley should be able to afford a better team than he has and, unless all signs fail, he will make a desperate effort to put it together during the coming winter.

Cleveland also will be forced to make changes in order to please the Forest City fans. Nobody can foresee what these changes will be, but they will come for all of that. All in all, it looks like a big winter in the ivory market.

K. H. S. at Port Jervis Saturday

The Kingston High School gridiron team will complete the first half of the season's schedule when it battles Port Jervis, the present champions of the Duso League at Port Jervis Saturday.

The combat is hailed as the locals' toughest match on the schedule. The Port Jervis outfit was trimmed in their opening battle with Mackensie Prep. which is looked upon as an extremely bad beating as the final tally stood 31-0. Port Jervis made a much better showing against Stuyvesant High than the locals, having held them to a scoreless tie two weeks ago. But then when it is taken into consideration that the Port Jervis team used several of their last year's men in the important berths in this match, and the New York outfit worked most of their second squad, this feat does not appear so remarkable. But there is plenty of stuff in the Port Jervis crew, no doubt.

Shultz, Coach O'Leary's dependable tackle, will be lost to the team for the balance of the season owing to his injured shoulder. Shultz was one of the mainstays of the K. H. S. line but was injured in the Alumni game to the extent that it was thought that he must miss several games. He bruised the shoulder again in the Middletown game in a bad tumble which forces him to drop football.

Nothing but Justice

In this God's world, with its wild whirling eddies and mad-foam oceans, where men and nations perish as if without law and judgment for an unjust thing sternly delayed, dost thou think therefore that there is no justice? It is what the fool had said in his heart. It is what the wise in all times were wise because they desired and knew forever not to be. I tell thee again there is nothing else but justice; one strong thing I find here below—the just thing, the true thing. • • • If the thing is unjust, then hast not succeeded, though bonfires blazed from north to south, and bells rang, and editors wrote leading articles, and the just thing lay trampled out of sight to all mortal eyes—an abolished and annihilated thing.—Thomas Carlyle.

Army Eleven Best in Years

Captain McEwan Says Line Is Not As Good as Last Year's But Team Is Better—Prepares For Navy and Yale Games.

(By Davis J. Walsh.)

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

West Point, N. Y., Oct. 20.—To him who would have visions, only the high places beckon.

They walk about today, these men in Army grey and as they look into the distances, as men who inhabit the heights will and do, they see the past but live in the present.

Out there in the mist of the lowlands on the opposite shore, Pritchard again is throwing a forward pass to Merrilat. Just above a distant grove of trees, old Charles Daly is driving his team through the last five yards. Oliphant has just cut outside of tackle, reversed his field and is straight-arming the defensive fullback.

Visions lurk in every nook and byway. Visions of a great past but may become a great present.

For today Oliphant is Harry Wilson, second year man and an all-American nominee while at Penn State. Captain Baxter is the Merrilat of the day and the once Tubby Hewitt is far greater than a prototype of the other days. He is himself.

Before the Notre Dame affair, they thought they had the greatest football team here since the war. After beating the Irish 27 to 0, they ceased to think. Thew knew it. Every man at the post, from Jack McEwan, head coach, down, know it very thoroughly.

"I'm proud of them," Captain McEwan announced without preamble.

"Proud of them," he repeated.

And there was nothing blameworthy about the captain's attitude. Between seasons, he had lost Wood, a fine punter, passer, runner and what not; also the best centre trio in the east, Garbisch, Farwick and Ellinger, to say nothing of a tackle and several ends.

The Army's reply was to produce a good, fast, intelligent football team for 1925, in many respects the superior of the 1924 outfit.

Last year, it had two adolescent quarterbacks in Yeomans and Harding. This year, it has two veterans. Who are they? Yeomans and Harding.

The ends, Baxter and Born, rank with the best in this section. They were only coming on to their best in the navy game last year. Saunders is more or less of a veteran tackle, but Sprague was untouched by big game fire when they tossed him in against Notre Dame. He played more sensational football than did Saunders. Schmidt, a 190 pounder, looked like one of the best guards in the east in this game. Seeman, his mate, seemed to be above the average. So did Daly at centre, the latter being a reformed backfield man.

Was the line as good as last year's? No, said Captain McEwan. Was the team better? Yes, quoth the captain.

The answer is found in a splendidly coordinated line and vastly improved backfield, including Wilson, Trapnell, Hewitt, Yeomans, Harding and Buell.

"Nothing in front of us now but the Yale and Navy games," Captain McEwan added. "The Navy, of course, always is tough. As for the other I can't say what will happen. Yale has a great team. So have we."

GULDY'S ALL-STARS BEAT CRAGAN'S CLUB

The Guldy's All-Stars handed Hank Cragan's All-Stars a 6 to 5 trimming Sunday afternoon at Block Park, the Guldy's finding the offerings of Cragan and Schick for a total of 14 hits. Komosa, who was on the mound for the Guldy All-Stars, allowed only seven safeties and sent thirteen men back to the bench on strikes. In the ninth with two men down Cragan's team made a strong bid for the game, but a perfect throw from deep right by Feeney caught Schick at the plate.

Use Old Newspapers

Newspapers make an excellent crack filler. Cut the papers fine and soak them. Make a paste by boiling one pound of flour in three quarts of water and add one teaspoonful of alum. Boil the shredded newspaper in this mixture until it becomes the consistency of putty. Force this into the cracks with a blunt knife. When it becomes dry stain or paint it to match the boards and you will have a smooth surface.

Modern Purse Traced to Rome and Greece

Purses were known to King Solomon or he would scarcely have warned the young man of his day against casting their lot together so that they might all have one purse. But the exact kind of purse meant is not known. It may have been a purse of chain mail, a bag of netting or a pouch of leather or some other skin. The biblical references to purses are numerous, but none throws any light on the shape or construction.

The first authentic description of purses comes from ancient Rome and classic Greece. There the first purses were little bags of leather which could be closed at the mouth by strings. At a somewhat later date these bags were made of network and were put to all kinds of uses, on which, to a considerable extent, depended their size. Some were worn over the hair by women, from which practice is derived the fillet of modern times.

Then, again, others were used by hunters as game bags. From this purpose to one of general use as a convenient receptacle for carrying the lawyers' papers or merchants' provisions, the net bag grew until its proportion became immense and for purses, as such, custom reverted to the little leather pouches first used.—New York Times.

Petty Tyranny

Isn't there, perhaps, a bit of petty tyranny in most of us? Don't we sometimes take a mean delight in dominating a situation, in lording it over another person, in exercising our small rights till they become veritable acts of despotism?

There's the husband who habitually places his wife in the position of a menial by requiring her to ask for money. There's the nagging, fussy wife whose "nerves" keep the entire family in subjugation. There's the bully brother who makes life for his small sisters utterly miserable.

And outside the family there are others who turn their functions in society into realms of absolute power. There's the ill-tempered boss, and the overexacting teacher, the snappy petty official.

But whether our tyranny is an innate one that lies in our character or an acquired one that has come through chance position in life, most of us have it in some form or other. There's no need of adding, we'd be better people and the world happier, too, without it.—The Designer Magazine.

Cricket Held in High Importance in China

In Shanghai the public parks, the gardens and the trees of the cathedral yard, in the center of the business district, are the hunting grounds of hundreds of Chinese coolies and boys. The quarry is the green cricket. To the Chinese a chirping cricket is a symbol of good luck. And crickets swarm on all the trees in the international settlement and their noise rises above even that of the traffic. Boys climb the trees, pick off the crickets, put them into small bamboo cages and then go through the streets selling them for a copper or two each. One cricket or more are to be found in almost every native home, where they chirp and trill all day and all night. The noise of a cricket is to a Chinese the height of musical excellence plus the added virtue of good luck. If all the multifarious noises of the noisy city of Shanghai were boiled down into one, the song of the cricket would drown them. No opera singer could capture half the rapturous interest that the cricket is getting from the Chinese today.

Winter Famine Threatens Bees

Cornell Specialist Advises Prompt Feeding and Gives Directions for Preparing the Proper Bee Food.

After visiting in several sections of the Hudson valley last week (October 5-10), it became evident to R. B. Willson, extensive specialist in agriculture of New York State College of Agriculture, Ithaca, N. Y., that bees in this section are not well provided with winter stores. Many colonies are short of enough stores to carry them through the winter, let alone enough to provide for abundant brood rearing in the spring, while other colonies are heavy with the dark, cloudy, honeydew stores on which bees cannot possibly winter in this cold climate.

All beekeepers in Ulster county are advised to make an inspection of their colonies at once. The longer feeding is delayed now, the less effective it is apt to be. Colonies with less than 30 pounds of good quality stores should be fed enough to make up the deficiency. All colonies in which there is honeydew should be fed heavily regardless of the amount of stores now on the hive. If you are not sure of honeydew when you see it, send a sample of the stores in your brood chamber to Mr. Willson for identification.

Directions for making the feed are as follows: Mix two parts of sugar weight with one part of water and heat to the boiling point. As soon as the mixture is boiling, add one tablespoonful of tartaric acid to each five gallons and remove from the fire.

A good feeder is a five or ten pound friction top pail. Puncture from the inside of the cover out about 30 holes from 1-32 to 1-16 inch in diameter and after filling it with syrup simply invert it over the cluster of bees inside of an empty hive body. Cover all well. Feed warm if the weather is cold if convenient, pack bags around the can so as to keep the cluster warm. If the weather should be warm, apply in the evening and feed either cold or warm.

Three winters ago, a county in the Hudson valley lost 90 per cent of its colonies of bees. Unless the condition of the winter stores is corrected at once, winter losses may be just as high all through the valley again next spring.

Farm Bureau Social Meetings

Ulster County Farm and Home Bureau committeemen in sixteen organized communities have met recently with Bureau Managers Evelyn Nance and F. M. Wigsten to plan programs for fall social meetings. The programs planned promise an evening of most enjoyable fun for all members and friends who attend. The spirit of competition instilled into these meetings last fall by the awarding of a cup to the community producing the best interpretation of the sketch "Joshing the Janitor," will prevail again this fall. This year honors will be awarded for the best performance of the play "Early Ohios and Rhode Island Reds," a one act play depicting the "city farmer" in the country. Each performance will be witnessed by competent judges.

In addition to the play, community committeemen promise a wide variety of music, stunts, games and eats. Plans are underway to have a director of the Home Bureau and one of the Farm Bureau attend and speak at each meeting. Flatbush community will stage the first meeting at the Lake Katrine Grange Hall on Monday, October 26. Other dates selected are:

STATE PUBLISHES JOHNSON PAPERS.

The Sir William Johnson papers have been printed to date from 1738-65 inclusive. The importance of this collection for the period which it covers can scarcely be overestimated. Johnson in his official capacity as Indian agent or as a military officer, and in the conduct of his private affairs, corresponded with people in all walks of life both in this country and abroad. His papers, consisting of letters sent and received, bills, accounts and other classes too numerous to specify, form an invaluable source of information, not only for the political and military, but also for the social, industrial and agricultural history of the times.

These papers have been collected from all parts of the United States and from England and Canada. So far four volumes have appeared. Several more volumes, including an index, are to be brought out, taking us well into 1774. Historical scholars interested in the forty years preceding the American Revolution will find this work of great value, as well as those who are interested in the development of this country, particularly in its Indian phase. The volumes approximate 1,000 pages each and are profusely illustrated with photographs, maps and autographs. A History of the Manuscripts, a Chronology and Itinerary, 1715-74, and a Genealogy of the Johnson Family are all to be found in Volume 1.

Committees for League Ball

The assembling and making of costumes and the perfection of the myriad details attendant upon the production of an entertainment of such magnitude as the circus ball, requires the cooperation and best labor of many people. It is only necessary to read the following list of committee chairmen and to know that back of them is the suport of all the rest of the huge cast to know that the success of the ball as a brilliant and amusing affair is assured. It only remains for the public to add its cooperation to assure it as a financial success for the carrying on of the league's baby welfare work.

Wreaths on Statues Barred in London

One of the little-known forbidden things in London is to lay a wreath before a statue. Five Americans of Scottish descent brought a wreath of bay leaves to lay before the statue of Robert Burns in the Embankment gardens, the occasion being the 125th anniversary of his death and they being Americans who keep note of such things.

A park ranger caught them at it and soon stopped this rash attempt to add to the decoration of the Embankment gardens. He ascertained at once (as he suspected) that they had no official and properly sealed permission to lay a wreath on Robert Burns' memorial.

The Americans asked him what he would have done if they had laid their wreath before Burns without being seen. The ranger replied honestly enough that in that case he would have taken it off when he did see it. So the Americans took their wreath away sorrowfully and laid it before the bust of Lincoln at the Savoy hotel. But why should it be necessary to get permission to do so innocent and pleasing a thing as to lay a wreath before a statue?

Offensive Gases

Strictly speaking there is no such thing as sewer gas. The principal gases formed by the decomposition of sewage or other organic matter are methane, carbon dioxide, nitrogen and sometimes hydrogen sulphide in varying proportions. Most of the gases are inodorous, but hydrogen sulphide even in small quantities is offensive.

The Notorious Line

"Once upon a time," he said, "there was a railroad line about 12 miles long that was notorious for its discomfort, bumps and dirt.

"A train on this line pulled into the terminus one morning, late as usual, and a man said, as he rose and brushed off the coal and dust and soot:

"'Well, thank goodness, the worst part of my journey is over.'

"'Goin' far?' said the conductor.

"'Madagascar,' said the man.

Home Brew of Abyssinia

A great quantity of beeswax is exported from Abyssinia, but the honey from which the wax is obtained is entirely consumed at home. They make a drink of it called "tej." The Abyssinian beehive is a long cylindrical basket which is suspended from the trees. A little honey is placed in it in the first place and soon the bees take possession of it and proceed to fill the basket. The honey is squeezed from the comb and allowed to ferment in goat skin containers. It is a home brew, but it has all the necessary "kick."

Caged Birds

"May I warn the owners of caged birds against the dangers and unintentional cruelty, of exposing their pets to the sun's rays during the hot weather?" asks Bird Lover, a correspondent of the London Post. "Many caged birds suffer from heart trouble, a disease the presence of which may be detected by a discoloration of the nostrils near the base of the beak. In such cases the hot sun is fatal. On sunny days birds should be kept in the shade between the hours of 9 a. m. and 7 p. m."

Seals "Preserved"

Under the law passed by congress in 1912 a reserve of 5,000 three-year-old male seals is required, but this number is not now considered adequate to supply the future needs of the herd in the Pribilof Islands. During the season of 1925, therefore, 2,500 three-year-old seals were reserved from killing. They are marked by shearing the fur from the toys of the heads.—Washington Star.

Bahama Islands

The Bahamas are a group of 3,000 islands, mostly reefs, of which only 20 are inhabited. The principal islands are: New Providence, population 13,554; Obaco, population 4,403; Great Bahama, 1,824; Andros, 7,545, and Harbor island. The total area is 4,403½ square miles, and the highest point is over 410 feet above sea level. The principal city is Nassau, which is situated on New Providence, and is a fashionable health resort. The mean temperature in the hot months is 88 degrees Fahrenheit, and in the cold months 68 degrees Fahrenheit. There are heavy rains from May to October, and the rainfall in one year was 63.32.

All Ages Poetic

For my part, I can call no age absolutely unpoetic; how should it be so since there are always children to whom the acorns and the swallow's eggs are a wonder, always those human passions and fatalities through which Garrick as Hamlet in bob wig and knee breeches moved his audience more than some have since done in velvet tunic and plume? . . . To be quite fair toward the ages, a little ugliness as well as beauty must be allowed to each of them, a little implicit poetry even to those which echoed loudest with servile, pompous, and trivial prose.—George Eliot.

Diver Describes Finding Bodies

Diver Liljah Declares Hole in Side of S-51 Was Seven Feet Wide—First Message From City of Rome Came Two Hours After Crash.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Boston, Mass., Oct. 20.—William Liljah, a diver employed by the Merritt-Chapman and Merritt Company, took the witness stand today before the naval court of inquiry at the Charlestown navy yard investigating the submarine S-51 disaster, and told the story of the finding of four bodies in the sunken submarine.

Liljah described the manner in which he found the four bodies of the victims, three in the engine room and one in the battery compartment

He declared the hole in the side of the S-51 was seven feet wide and indicated the craft was struck on the port side The blow was delivered by the steamship City of Rome twenty-five degrees aft of the beam, he said.

Liljah said the entire section around the spot where the steamer struck was smashed, lockers inside being wrecked by the force of the crash

It was impossible to get into the control room, the witness said, but testified holes were bored which revealed the compartment was filled with water

George W Nichols, of Cliftondale, Mass., district manager of the American Radio Corporation at Boston, was the next witness. He testified he had legal custody of the log containing all the radio messages sent by the City of Rome on the night of the disaster

On the request of Lieutenant Commander Charles A. Lockwood, judge advocate of the court, Nichols produced the records and began to read them.

His testimony showed that the first message from the City of Rome was sent at 12.10 nearly two hours after the crash and addressed to the Savannah Line S. S. Company.

The second message, Nichols testified, was sent at 2·15 a. m and was to the submarine base at New London.

The Rev. Francis Sydney Smithers, Jr., rector of St Paul's Episcopal Church in Poughkeepsie, died Monday evening at his home in that city after a two days' illness.

Mrs. George Colburn, formerly of this city, died Sunday evening at Rhinebeck Besides her husband she is survived by three sons, Charles, Harry and George.

Henry Krudner died at his home in New Salem today, in the seventy-fourth year of his age. Funeral from the late residence on Friday afternoon, at 2 o'clock. Interment in St. Remy Cemetery.

Word was received by relatives and friends in this city on Monday of the sudden death on October 19 of Irene Winchell Ganoung, widow of the late Martin D. Ganoung, at her home in Roxbury, Delaware county. Mrs. Ganoung is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Janette Keator and Mrs. Tracey Redmond, also one sister, Mrs. Ella Darling of Kingston Funeral arrangements had not been completed.

Mrs. Catherine Mager, wife of the late Hanson Mager, and one of the oldest and very highly respected citizens of this city, died early this morning following a long illness. She leaves three daughters, Mrs. Edgar Kain with whom she made her home, Mrs John Snyder and Mrs. Mary Spross all of this city, also twelve grandchildren and seventeen great grandchildren. Funeral from the home of Mrs. Kain at 60 Murray street Thursday morning at 9 o'clock and 9:30 at St. Peter's Church with a requiem Mass for the repose of her soul. Interment in the family plot in St. Peter's cemetery.

Martha Jane Holt, widow of the late James E Holt, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Dulcie Holt Ross at Port Ewen, Monday evening at 10:30 in the 87th year of her age. Mrs. Holt had always been very active and was a great lover of nature. She was a member of the Port Ewen Reformed Dutch Church in which she was deeply interested in church and Sunday School work. Last March Mrs. Holt suffered a stroke from which she never recovered, although her mind was perfectly clear until the last. Those wishing to view the remains may do so on Wednesday from 2 until 4. The funeral will be private Thursday at 2 o'clock.

Monday afternoon the funeral of Dorothy Katz, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Katz, of 64 Abruyn street, was held. The funeral was one of the largest ever held in the city. Dorothy, who was only fifteen years old, was one of the most popular girls in town, loved by all her teachers in high school and by all who knew her. Dr. Ezekiel Leavitt, who officiated, made a stirring address which moved all those assembled to tears. Dr. Leavitt spoke of the nothingness of life, of the mysteries of death and of the unknown ways of the Maker who cuts short the lives of those who have all the reasons to live. "The minute we are born," concluded Rabbi Leavitt, "we are candidates for death, but it is a great tragedy when a young life is shattered and a new temple is ruined, and such a temple, such a shrine was Dorothy Katz to her parents."

Stairs' Death Toll

In the Manhattan section of New York there have been more than 300 deaths in a single year due to falls on stairs. The total number of such fatalities in the United States is estimated to be about 14,900 each year. The majority of these falls are due either to slipping or tripping, the former being far more prevalent. About 35 per cent of accidents on stairs occur during December, January and February. This is due to snow, ice and poor lighting.

In the JUNGLE

With Cheerups and the Quixies by Grace Bliss Stewart

RHINO HAS THE BLUES

"HO, HUM!" grunted Ranny Rhino, as he rolled over in the muddy water of the Yellow River and turned one tiny shiny eye toward Big Bright Mr. Sun who was just going down behind the tall Palm Tree.

"I suppose I might as well get up and look for my supper. It's a long way to the nearest plantation, but that sugar cane is well worth it. Maybe I'll find some bamboo, too. Nothing is much fun, though, when you can't see well, now is it?" he grumbled, as he caught sight of Polly Parrot in the tree above him.

"Well, that depends on what you are trying to see," cried Polly saucily. "If it's a joke or your duty, then I say it's all very well to have good eyesight, but—"

"Oh, Polly, please do be sensible," wailed Ranny. "I'm serious about this, really I am. I go ploughing around with these dull little eyes of mine, charging at things and generally missing them. Even if I don't get into much trouble because I am big and folks are afraid of the two fierce horns on my nose, still I never feel comfortable because I am so in doubt about danger being near."

"Big Ranny Rhino! Why, I should think you were. There's nobody in the whole Jungle larger, except Gray Ears the Elephant. And what you are grumbling about I don't know, when you are so swift that you can outrun a horse. Then there's your keen scent and your two fine horns. Your cousin in India has but one. You've a nose to be proud of, I say."

"Yes, I know all that, Polly, but I can't help it; I'm blue," complained Ranny. "You seem jolly this morning; I wish you could make me feel so."

"Well, I am happy, Ranny Rhino. It doesn't take good eyesight to find that out, does it? And I'll just take you to the person who made me so, if you would like to go. Maybe he can help you too. His name is Cheerups, and he came all the way from America to broaden his acquaintance. I should think he would like you, Ranny; goodness knows, you are broad enough."

"How lovely that is of you, Polly!" said Ranny, opening his mouth in a wide smile and showing so many teeth that Polly gave a little shiver and moved away It didn't look to her like a good place for an accidental fall.

"Yes, Cheerups showed me how to make Mr. Parrot do his share of sitting on our nest. And what do you suppose he told me? Why, just to be kind and polite. It sounds simple, but it worked. So that's the reason I can be away this morning. I don't have to worry any more about my fine eggs getting cold. Come on now, Ranny, let's be off to find Cheerups," chuckled Polly.

Ranny was so pleased and happy that he came right out of the water and frisked along by the Yellow River, down the Winding Way and through the Twisty Vines, with Polly Parrot flying overhead, until they came to the little clear place in the Jungle where Cheerups lived.

AN ABBREVIATED STORY

SOME OF EACH

DINWEEVIE DOGGS, president of the Sooptown chamber of commerce, was showing the wonders of the town to the distinguished visitor, Jazzbo, the man from Mars.

"And last but not least, Mr. Jazzbo," beamed Doggs, "I must show you that great American institution, the five and ten-cent store. There's nothing there over ten cents or under five or in between, and there's nothing that's not on sale there."

"Well, well!" wellwelled Jazzbo—"even obsolete whisky glasses and things to fix whatchacallums with?"

"Even those," smiled Doggs.

"Well, well," wellwailed Jazzbo. And they went to the five and ten-cent store, and Dinweevie Doggs radiated. "Here we are! Did you ever see such variety in your life. Look at that stack of hair straighteners! Here's a handful for souvenirs. Look at all the patent monkey wrenches for training monkeys! Stick a couple in your pocket for souvenirs! I'll pay for them! Observe the counterful of cork dishes that float if water or gravy is spilled on them! Do have a half dozen as souvenirs."

An hour later, at the corner of Might and Main streets, Jazzbo was dug out from under a pile of miscellaneous articles including transferable cigar bands, noodle silencers, Javanese ankle scratchers, pocket squirt guns for reflavoring overexercised chewing gum, rubber shoestrings, spark plugs, pin wheels, umbrellas, ivory-handled barrel openers, demi tasse forks, dandelion wine, boiler buttons, baby banks, floor lamps, curtain poles and cobweb finders.

"Well, well!" wellwelled the semi-conscious Jazzbo. "Such a planet!"

SHADOWS*

No shadow e'er can bother me.
And on my way I walk straight past it,
Unless unhappily I see
That I unwittingly have cast it.

And if it be that mine's the fault
That brings that shadow there on my way
I step aside, and from the vault
Let golden Light stream on the highway.

And when I face that Light I find,
E'en though its radiant luster blind me,
The shadow that hath vexed my mind
Is left forevermore behind me.

Gave Name to Fur

Mandel fur is a trade name used in the fur industry. In reality it is the pelt of a species of Asiatic sheep. This fur was first put on the market by a man named Mandel, and has retained his name.

Among the NOTABLES

HERBERT C. HOOVER

WHEN a man's name is incorporated as a part of the language, he is truly great. Nowadays, we never say we are eliminating waste or practicing economy; we simply say we are "Hooverizing" And it's quite likely the word will become a permanent part of the language.

Herbert Hoover is undoubtedly one of the greatest men the World war brought out. He was born in Iowa, August 10, 1874, studied mining engineering, was graduated from Leland Stanford, and, after various experiences in mining in this country, went to Australia as a mining chief. This led him into China, where he did a lot of exploration work through the interior, and where he took part in the defense of Tientsin during the Boxer trouble.

That was about twenty-five years ago, and after these exciting happenings, he settled in London, holding several important positions with mining concerns. Then Germany went through Belgium in 1914, and one of the great problems to be met while the armies fought, was—who was to feed Belgium and how? Herbert Hoover was appointed head of the Belgian relief, and did work so remarkable that no one could appreciate it until after the war was over and there was time to view events in proper perspective. He procured food, distributed it, fixed it so starving communities should have their share, made sure that the hungry people, and not the German army, got the food.

Naturally he was appointed food administrator in the United States when we went into the war. Among other things, he curtailed profiteering; encouraged home production and canning; keeping food properly distributed; preventing waste; and shipping supplies to our allies.

What Volcanoes Create

The geologist, Suess, holds the source of the sea salt was volcanic eruptions, when the earth's crust was beginning to harden it. Eruptions, he says, give forth gaseous compounds containing chlorine, brought down by rain.

Financial and Commercial

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Oct. 20.—Under the impetus of a broad public demand for oil, railroad and motor stocks, the market moved forward all along the line today. To the favorable factors might be added the decline in call money rate to 4½ per cent, with liberal supplies at that rate, and the inauguration of new or extra dividends by companies whose stocks are actively traded in.

Speculative pools, whipped up prices of Marland, Pan-American, Mid-Continent and other active oils. Inauguration of $2 dividends on Skelly, and official reports of $7 a share earnings on Marland, with prospects of an increase in the dividend to five per cent, stimulated buying. Marland sold around 54, up six points from yesterday's low.

Southern Railway led a spirited rise in railroad stocks and reached a new high for all time at 111, mostly on expectation of the prospective 7 per cent dividend to replace the present five per cent rate.

A feature of the market was the return to the active list of many of the "old line" industrial and specialty stocks. American Can sold within a point of its record high price; Westinghouse Airbrake and Westinghouse Electric were active at about four points higher; General Electric advanced to 301½ for another nine point gain; Mack Trucks jumped about seven points.

The most favorable news from the market standpoint, came from the steel trade, where prices of various products were advanced from one to two dollars a ton.

Book Borrowers

All of us suffer from people who borrow our books and then forget to return them. In time we cannot remember what has become of the missing volumes. Keep a card or small notebook at hand near the bookshelves and each time a book is borrowed jot down the title, the borrower and the date. Then when a reasonable length of time has elapsed do not hesitate to ask for the return of the book.

Inspiration From Prayer

On all my expeditions, prayer made me stronger, morally and mentally, than any of my nonpraying companions. It did not blind my eyes or dull my mind, or close my ears; but, on the contrary, it gave me confidence. It did more: It gave me joy, and pride, in my work, and lifted me hopefully over the 1,500 miles of forest tracks, eager to face the day's perils and fatigues.—Henry M. Stanley.

"FURNACE MYSTERY" IS BELIEF OF AUTHORITIES

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New Lexington, Ohio, Oct 20—Perry county today furnished Ohio with what authorities said might be anothehr "furnace mystery."

Sheriff Harley McNabb left at noon for Columbus with a packet of ashes which he believes are those of some fiend's victim. The ashes will be analyzed in Columbus.

Dr. R. R. Brooks, who examined the ashes, said a resemblance was found to the base of a skull, a toe and part of the sphenoid bone probably of a child.

The ghastly find was made by Mrs. Mary Lynscott, janitress of the local school, and Miss Beatrice Wright, teacher.

The school yard has been the scene of many wild orgies, county authorities said. Petting parties have been staged there by autoists.

The sheriff believes that murder has been committed and the body cremated in the school house furnace.

DAVIS RECEIVES MITCHELL COURT MARTIAL PAPERS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Oct. 20.—Court martial papers for Colonel William Mitchell, who charged his superiors with "criminal inefficiency" in administering the country's air forces, reached the desk of Secretary of War Davis today. They recommend that Colonel Mitchell be tried for "conduct prejudicial to good order and discipline."

Secretary Davis is expected to order the court after an examination of the papers.

U. S. Approves Arms Conference

President Coolidge Does Not Say What Part United States Would Take in European Arms Conference—"We Have Reduced," Would Be Our Reply.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Oct. 20.—If European nations decide to follow up the Locarno peace treaties with an international conference of their own to reduce military and naval armaments, the American government will regard the move with hearty approval, it was announced at the White House today.

President Coolidge assured inquirers that this government has been actuated by no selfish motive in proposing a new arms conference, nor has it any pride of authorship, and if the conflicting elements of European statesmanship think they can get together in a move to revise armies and navies downward, this government stands ready to encourage it.

Mr Coolidge did not commit himself directly as to what actual part the United States could or would take in such an European conference, but those who talked with him went away with the distinct impression that the American attitude would be one of helpful cooperation. So long as a conference dealt with reduction of land armament however, the United States could hardly play any appreciable part. The American army is reduced now to little more than 100,000 men. All that the United States could say to France and Great Britain would be: "We have reduced."

Any discussion of further restriction of naval armament, however, could inevitably bring in the United States, it was admitted, as one of the two greatest sea powers.

The president is understood to be not greatly concerned whether a second arms conference is held in the United States, under his auspices, or in Geneva, under the direction of the League of Nations. For purely practical purposes, as demonstrated by the Washington conference in 1921-22, he believes a conference in Washington would be more fruitful of results, but it was indicated there will be no "quibbling" by this government as to where it is held—so long as it carries promise of constructive progress toward disarmament.

Investigating Radio Monopoly

Federal Trade Commission Begins Probing Charges of Radio Concerns Combining to Restrict Competition, Monopoly in Manufacture, Etc.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Oct. 20.—The Federal trade commission today began investigating one of the biggest cases in its history—two billion dollars worth of associated manufacturing interests, charged with combining for the purpose of restricting competition and creating a monopoly in the manufacture, and sale of radio devices and apparatus and in international radio communication.

The respondents include the Radio Corporation of America, the General Electric Company, American Telephone and Telegraph Company, and Western Electric Company, Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, United Fruit Company, the Wireless Apparatus Company and the International Radio Telegraph Company.

A host of the nation's leading constitutional and corporation lawyers, including John W. Davis, former democratic presidential nominee, representing the respondents, attended the proceedings which will be covered several weeks.

F. D. Kamerer, chief traveling auditor for the General Electric, was the first witness called. Kamerer consumed the greater part of the day, listing holdings of the company in stock in other corporations.

John B. Cotton, of counsel for the Radio Corporation of America, filed a list of objections to the complaint questioning the jurisdiction of the federal trade commission and charging.

1. The contents of the complaint is vague.
2. The practices engaged in by the respondents did not include unfair methods of competition.
3. The acts of the defendants had been approved by other executive departments of the government, that government officials had participated in some of these practices.
4. That the acts of the respondents were actually beneficial, creating a "modern art of radio," a world wide communication, and entertainment in the home.
5. That the association of the respondents was purely a voluntary combination of supplementary units creating an industry.

Bahama Islands

The Bahamas are a group of 3,000 islands, mostly reefs, of which only 20 are inhabited. The principal islands are: New Providence, population 13,-554; Obaco, population 4,463; Great Bahama, 1,824; Andros, 7,545, and Harbor island. The total area is 4,-403½ square miles, and the highest point is over 410 feet above sea level. The principal city is Nassau, which is situated on New Providence, and is a fashionable health resort. The mean temperature in the hot months is 88 degrees Fahrenheit, and in the cold months 66 degrees Fahrenheit. There are heavy rains from May to October, and the rainfall in one year was 63.32

All Ages Poetic

For my part, I can call no age absolutely unpoetic; how should it be so since there are always children to whom the acorns and the swallow's eggs are a wonder, always those human passions and fatalities through which Garrick as Hamlet in bob wig and knee breeches moved his audience more than some have since done in velvet tunic and plume? . . . To be quite fair toward the ages, a little ugliness as well as beauty must be allowed to each of them, a little implicit poetry even to those which echoed loudest with servile, pompous, and trivial prose.—George Eliot.

Diver Describes Finding Bodies

Diver Liljah Declares Hole in Side of S-51 Was Seven Feet Wide—First Message From City of Rome Came Two Hours After Crash.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Boston, Mass., Oct. 20.—William Liljah, a diver employed by the Merritt-Chapman and Merritt Company, took the witness stand today before the naval court of inquiry at the Charlestown navy yard investigating the submarine S-51 disaster, and told the story of the finding of four bodies in the sunken submarine.

Liljah described the manner in which he found the four bodies of the victims, three in the engine room, and one in the battery compartment.

He declared the hole in the side of the S-51 was seven feet wide and indicated the craft was struck on the port side. The blow was delivered by the steamship City of Rome twenty-five degrees aft of the beam, he said.

Liljah said the entire section around the spot where the steamer struck was smashed, lockers inside being wrecked by the force of the crash.

It was impossible to get into the control room, the witness said, but testified holes were bored which revealed the compartment was filled with water.

George W Nichols, of Cliftondale, Mass, district manager of the American Radio Corporation at Boston, was the next witness He testified he had legal custody of the log containing all the radio messages sent by the City of Rome on the night of the disaster.

On the request of Lieutenant Commander Charles A Lockwood, judge advocate of the court, Nichols produced the records and began to read them.

His testimony showed that the first message from the City of Rome was sent at 12 10 nearly two hours after the crash and addressed to the Savannah Line S S. Company

The second message, Nichols testified, was sent at 2:15 a. m and was to the submarine base at New London.

LOCAL DEATH RECORD.

Recent Deaths and Funerals of Persons in This Vicinity.

The Rev. Francis Sydney Smithers, Jr., rector of St. Paul's Episcopal Church in Poughkeepsie, died Monday evening at his home in that city after a two days' illness.

Mrs. George Colburn, formerly of this city, died Sunday evening at Rhinebeck Besides her husband she is survived by three sons, Charles, Harry and George

Henry Krudner died at his home in New Salem today, in the seventy-fourth year of his age. Funeral from the late residence on Friday afternoon, at 2 o'clock. Interment in St. Remy Cemetery.

Word was received by relatives and friends in this city on Monday of the sudden death on October 19 of Irene Winchell Ganoung, widow of the late Martin D. Ganoung, at her home in Roxbury, Delaware county. Mrs Ganoung is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Janette Keator and Mrs Tracey Redmond, also one sister, Mrs Ella Darling of Kingston. Funeral arrangements had not been completed.

Mrs. Catherine Mager, wife of the late Hanson Mager, and one of the oldest and very highly respected citizens of this city, died early this morning following a long illness. She leaves three daughters, Mrs. Edgar Kain with whom she made her home, Mrs. John Snyder and Mrs Mary Spross all of this city, also twelve grandchildren and seventeen great grandchildren. Funeral from the home of Mrs. Kain at 60 Murray street Thursday morning at 9 o'clock and 9:30 at St. Peter's Church with a requiem Mass for the repose of her soul. Interment in the family plot in St. Peter's cemetery.

Martha Jane Holt, widow of the late James E. Holt, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Dulcie Holt Ross at Port Ewen, Monday evening at 10:30 in the 87th year of her age. Mrs. Holt had always been very active and was a great lover of nature. She was a member of the Port Ewen Reformed Dutch Church in which she was deeply interested in church and Sunday School work. Last March Mrs. Holt suffered a stroke from which she never recovered, although her mind was perfectly clear until the last. Those wishing to view the remains may do so on Wednesday from 2 until 4. The funeral will be private Thursday at 2 o'clock.

Monday afternoon the funeral of Dorothy Katz, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Katz, of 64 Abruyn street, was held. The funeral was one of the largest ever held in the city. Dorothy, who was only fifteen years old, was one of the most popular girls in town, loved by all her teachers in high school and by all who knew her. Dr. Ezekiel Leavitt, who officiated, made a stirring address which moved all those assembled to tears. Dr. Leavitt spoke of the nothingness of life, of the mysteries of death and of the unknown ways of the Maker who cuts short the lives of those who have all the reasons to live. "The minute we are born," concluded Rabbi Leavitt, "we are candidates for death, but it is a great tragedy when a young life is shattered and a new temple is ruined, and such a temple, such a shrine was Dorothy Katz to her parents."

Stairs' Death Toll

In the Manhattan section of New York there have been more than 100 deaths in a single year due to falls on stairs. The total number of such fatalities in the United States is estimated to be about 14,000 each year. The majority of these falls are due either to slipping or tripping, the former being far more prevalent. About 35 per cent of accidents on stairs occur during December, January and February. This is due to snow, ice and poor lighting.

RHINO HAS THE BLUES

"HO, HUM!" grunted Ranny Rhino, as he rolled over in the muddy water of the Yellow River and turned one tiny shiny eye toward Big Bright Mr. Sun who was just going down behind the tall Palm Tree.

"I suppose I might as well get up and look for my supper. It's a long way to the nearest plantation, but that sugar cane is well worth it. Maybe I'll find some bamboo, too. Nothing is much fun, though, when you can't see well, now is it?" he grumbled, as he caught sight of Polly Parrot in the tree above him.

"Well, that depends on what you are trying to see," cried Polly saucily. "If it's a joke or your duty, then I say it's all very well to have good eyesight, but—"

"Oh, Polly, Please Do Be Sensible," Wailed Ranny.

"Oh, Polly, please do be sensible," wailed Ranny. "I'm serious about this, really I am. I go ploughing around with these dull little eyes of mine, charging at things and generally missing them. Even if I don't get into much trouble because I am big and folks are afraid of the two fierce horns on my nose, still I never feel comfortable because I am so in doubt about danger being near."

"Big, Ranny Rhino! Why, I should think you were. There's nobody in the whole Jungle larger, except Gray Ears the Elephant. And what you are grumbling about I don't know, when you are so swift that you can outrun a horse. Then there's your keen scent and your two fine horns. Your cousin in India has but one. You've a nose to be proud of, I say."

"Yes, I know all that, Polly, but I can't help it; I'm blue," complained Ranny. "You seem jolly this morning; I wish you could make me feel so."

"Well, I am happy, Ranny Rhino. It doesn't take good eyesight to find that out, does it? And I'll just take you to the person who made me so, if you would like to go. Maybe he can help you too. His name is Cheerups, and he came all the way from America to broaden his acquaintance. I should think he would like you, Ranny; goodness knows, you are broad enough"

"How lovely that is of you, Polly!" said Ranny, opening his mouth in a wide smile and showing so many teeth that Polly gave a little shiver and moved away. It didn't look to her like a good place for an accidental fall.

"Yes, Cheerups showed me how to make Mr. Parrot do his share of sitting on our nest. And what do you suppose he told me? Why, just to be kind and polite. It sounds simple, but it worked. So that's the reason I can be away this morning. I don't have to worry any more about my fine eggs getting cold. Come on now, Ranny, let's be off to find Cheerups," chuckled Polly.

Ranny was so pleased and happy that he came right out of the water and frisked along by the Yellow River, down the Winding Way and through the Twisty Vines, with Polly Parrot flying overhead, until they came to the little clear place in the Jungle where Cheerups lived.

AN ABBREVIATED STORY

SOME OF EACH

DINWEEVIE DOGGS, president of the Sooptown chamber of commerce, was showing the wonders of the town to the distinguished visitor, Jazzbo, the man from Mars.

"And last but not least, Mr. Jazzbo," beamed Doggs, "I must show you that great American institution, the five and ten-cent store. There's nothing there over ten cents or under five or in between, and there's nothing that's not on sale there."

"Well, well!" wellwelled Jazzbo—"even obsolete whisky glasses and things to fix whatchacallums with?"

"Even those," smiled Doggs.

"Well, well," wellwelled Jazzbo. And they went to the five and ten-cent store, and Dinweevie Doggs radiated, "Here we are! Did you ever see such variety in your life. Look at that stack of hair straighteners! Here's a handful for souvenirs. Look at all the patent monkey wrenches for training monkeys! Stick a couple in your pocket for souvenirs! I'll pay for them! Observe the counterful of cork dishes that float if water or gravy is spilled on them! Do have a half dozen as souvenirs."

An hour later, at the corner of Might and Main streets, Jazzbo was dug out from under a pile of miscellaneous articles including transferable cigar bands, noodle silencers, Javanese ankle scratchers, pocket squirt guns for reflavoring overexercised chewing gum, rubber shoestrings, spark plugs, pin wheels, umbrellas, ivory-handled barrel openers, demi tasse forks, dandelion wine, boiler buttons, baby banks, floor lamps, curtain poles and cobweb finders.

SHADOWS'

NO SHADOW e'er can bother me.
And on my way I walk straight past it.
Unless unhappily I see
That I unwittingly have cast it.

And if it be that mine's the fault
That brings that shadow there on my way
I step aside, and from the vault
Let golden Light stream on the highway.

And when I face that Light I find,
E'en though its radiant luster blind me,
The shadow that hath vexed my mind
Is left forevermore behind me.

Game Name to Fur

Mandel fur is a trade name used in the fur industry. In reality it is the pelt of a species of Asiatic sheep. This fur was first put on the market by a man named Mandel, and has retained his name.

Among the NOTABLES

HERBERT C. HOOVER

WHEN a man's name is incorporated as a part of the language, he is truly great. Nowadays, we never say we are eliminating waste or practicing economy; we simply say we are "Hooverizing." And it's quite likely the word will become a permanent part of the language.

Herbert Hoover is undoubtedly one of the greatest men the World war brought out. He was born in Iowa, August 10, 1874, studied mining engineering, was graduated from Leland Stanford, and, after various experiences in mining in this country, went to Australia as a mining chief. This led him into China, where he did a lot of exploration work through the interior, and where he took part in the defense of Tientsin during the Boxer trouble.

That was about twenty-five years ago, and after these exciting happenings, he settled in London, holding several important positions with mining concerns. Then Germany went through Belgium in 1914, and one of the great problems to be met while the armies fought, was—who was to feed Belgium and how? Herbert Hoover was appointed head of the Belgian relief, and did work so remarkable that no one could appreciate it until after the war was over and there was time to view events in proper perspective. He procured food, distributed it, fixed it so starving communities should have their share, made sure that the hungry people, and not the German army, got the food.

Naturally he was appointed food administrator in the United States when we went into the war. Among other things, he curtailed profiteering; encouraged home production and canning; keeping food properly distributed; preventing waste; and shipping supplies to our allies.

What Volcanoes Create

The geologist, Suess, holds the source of the sea salt was volcanic eruptions, when the earth's crust was beginning to harden it. Eruptions, he says, give forth gaseous compounds containing chlorine, brought down by rain.

Financial and Commercial

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Oct. 20.—Under the impetus of a broad public demand for oil, railroad and motor stocks, the market moved forward all along the line today. To the favorable factors might be added the decline in call money rate to 4½ per cent, with liberal supplies at that rate, and the inauguration of new or extra dividends by companies whose stocks are actively traded in.

Speculative pools, whipped up prices of Marland, Pan-American, Mid-Continent and other active oils. Inauguration of $2 dividends on Skelly, and official reports of $7 a share earnings on Marland, with prospects of an increase in the dividend to five per cent, stimulated buying. Marland sold around 54, up six points from yesterday's low.

Southern Railway led a spirited rise in railroad stocks and reached a new high for all time at 111, mostly on expectation of the prospective 7 per cent dividend to replace the present five per cent rate.

A feature of the market was the return to the active list of many of the "old line" industrial and specialty stocks. American Can sold within a point of its record high price; Westinghouse Airbrake and Westinghouse Electric were active at about four points higher; General Electric advanced to 301½ for another nine point gain; Mack Trucks jumped about seven points.

The most favorable news from the market standpoint, came from the steel trade, where prices of various products were advanced from one to two dollars a ton.

Book Borrowers

All of us suffer from people who borrow our books and then forget to return them. In time we cannot remember what has become of the missing volumes. Keep a card or small notebook at hand near the bookshelves and each time a book is borrowed jot down the title, the borrower and the date. Then when a reasonable length of time has elapsed do not hesitate to ask for the return of the book.

Inspiration From Prayer

On all my expeditions, prayer made me stronger, morally and mentally, than any of my nonpraying companions. It did not blind my eyes or dull my mind, or close my ears; but, on the contrary, it gave me confidence. It did more: It gave me joy, and pride, in my work, and lifted me hopefully over the 1,500 miles of forest tracks, eager to face the day's perils and fatigues.—Henry M. Stanley.

"FURNACE MYSTERY" IS BELIEF OF AUTHORITIES.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New Lexington, Ohio, Oct 20—Perry county today furnished Ohio with what authorities said might be anothehr "furnace mystery."

Sheriff Harley McNabb left at noon for Columbus with a packet of ashes which he believes are those of some fiend's victim. The ashes will be analyzed in Columbus.

Dr. R. R. Brooks, who examined the ashes, said a resemblance was found to the base of a skull, a toe and part of the sphenoid bone probably of a child.

The ghastly find was made by Mrs. Mary-Lynscott, janitress of the local school, and Miss Beatrice Wright, teacher.

The school yard has been the scene of many wild orgies, county authorities said. Petting parties have been staged there by autoists.

The sheriff believes that murder has been committed and the body cremated in the school house furnace.

DAVIS RECEIVES MITCHELL COURT MARTIAL PAPERS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Oct. 20.—Court martial papers for Colonel William Mitchell, who charged his superiors with "criminal inefficiency" in administering the country's air forces, reached the desk of Secretary of War Davis today. They recommend that Colonel Mitchell be tried for "conduct prejudicial to good order and discipline."

Secretary Davis is expected to order the court after an examination of the papers.

U. S. Approves Arms Conference

President Coolidge Does Not Say What Part United States Would Take in European Arms Conference—"We Have Reduced," Would Be Our Reply.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Oct. 20.—If European nations decide to follow up the Locarno peace treaties with an international conference of their own to reduce military and naval armaments, the American government will regard the move with hearty approval, it was announced at the White House today.

President Coolidge assured inquirers that this government has been actuated by no selfish motive in proposing a new arms conference, nor has it any pride of authorship, and if the conflicting elements of European statesmanship think they can get together in a move to revise armies and navies downward, this government stands ready to encourage it.

Mr Coolidge did not commit himself directly as to what actual part the United States could or would take in such an European conference, but those who talked with him went away with the distinct impression that the American attitude would be one of helpful cooperation.

So long as a conference dealt with reduction of land armament however, the United States could hardly play any appreciable part. The American army is reduced now to little more than 100,000 men. All that the United States could say to France and Great Britain would be: "We have reduced."

Any discussion of further restriction of naval armament, however, would inevitably bring in the United States, it was admitted, as one of the two greatest sea powers.

The president is understood to be not greatly concerned whether a second arms conference is held in the United States, under his auspices, or in Geneva, under the direction of the League of Nations. For purely practical purposes ,as demonstrated by the Washington conference in 1921-22, he believes a conference in Washington would be more fruitful of results, but it was indicated there will be no "quibbling" by this government as to where it is held—so long as it gives promise of constructive progress toward disarmament.

Investigating Radio Monopoly

Federal Trade Commission Begins Probing Charges of Radio Concerns Combining to Restrict Competition, Monopoly in Manufacture, Etc.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Oct. 20.—The Federal trade commission today began investigating one of the biggest cases in its history—two billion dollars worth of associated manufacturing interests, charged with combining for the purpose of restricting competition and creating a monopoly in the manufacture, and sale of radio devices and apparatus and in international radio communication.

The respondents include the Radio Corporation of America, the General Electric Company, American Telephone and Telegraph Company, and Western Electric Company, Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, United Fruit Company, the Wireless Apparatus Company and the International Radio Telegraph Company.

A host of the nation's leading constitutional and corporation lawyers, including John W. Davis, former Democratic presidential nominee, representing the respondents, attended the proceedings which will covered several weeks.

F. D. Kamerer, chief traveling auditor for the General Electric, was the first witness called. Kamerer consumed the greater part of the day, listing holdings of the company in stock in other corporations.

John B. Cotton, of counsel for the Radio Corporation of America, filed a list of objections to the complaint questioning the jurisdiction of the Federal trade commission and charging:

1. The contents of the complaint was vague.
2. The practices engaged in by the respondents did not include unfair methods of competition.
3. The acts of the defendants had been approved by other executive departments of the government, that government officials had participated in some of these practices.
4. That the acts of the respondents were actually beneficial, creating a "modern art of radio," a world wide communication, and entertainment in the home.
5. That the association of the respondents was purely a voluntary combination of supplementary units creating an industry.

Jury Brings Joy To Defendant Joy

Verdict of No Cause of Action is Returned in Action Brought by Van Kleeck Motor and Garage, Inc., Against Charles E. Joy.

In this action brought by the Van Kleeck Motor & Garage, Inc., against Charles E. Joy, defendant, a verdict of no cause of action was returned this morning when court convened. The action was brought to recover commission on the sale of a motor car. Plaintiff alleged that the defendant contracted to purchase a car and after entering into a contract failed to fulfill it. He purchased another car and failed to take the car from the Messrs. Van Kleeck. Van Etten & Cook appeared for plaintiff and N. H. Fessenden appeared for defendant. A motion to set aside the verdict and for a new trial was denied by the court.

Negligence Action.

A negligence action brought by Alice Hoffman, an infant, by guardian against the New York, Ontario & Western Railroad to recover damages was taken up for trial. The action, once before tried resulted in a verdict for plaintiff which was set aside and a new trial granted. Plaintiff contends that while a passenger on a train from New York to Ellenville on July 3, 1921, when she was 11½ years old, she was injured when one of the doors of a car was closed while she was in the act of communicating to a trainman who was on the platform of the car. Her hand was caught and a portion of her little finger on the left hand was severed.

In company with her uncle she was returning to her home in Ellenville. She had gone to the front of the car at the suggestion of her uncle to inquire if it was necessary to change cars for Ellenville and while in the act of inquiring of a trainman who was on the platform of the car the train gave a sudden jerk and she was thrown forward. Her hand was caught in the door as it was closed by the sudden jolt.

The plaintiff contends that the catch which fastened the door open was defective and caused the door to swing shut when the train suddenly jerked. Her uncle testified he had tried the door after the accident and found the spring weak.

LeRoy Lounsberry appears for the plaintiff and Philip Elting and Howard Chipp for the defendant railroad.

DISPLAY STORM SIGNALS ALONG LAKE ERIE

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Cleveland, O., Oct. 20.—With vessels scurrying to safety, storm signals were displayed along all Lake Erie shores today, following heavy winds which carried with them icy snow flakes.

The waters of the lake, lashed by the stiff breeze, which at times approached the proportions of a gale, were still running high, but shipping officials expressed the belief that none of the vessels out of port were in danger.

Wheeler Says May Use Army

To Enforce Dry Law if Criminal Element Cannot be Handled by the Civil Authorities—Warns the President.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Oct. 20.—Use of military forces to enforce the dry law was predicted today by Wayne B. Wheeler, counsel for the Anti-Saloon League, "if the criminal element engaged in the liquor traffic cannot be handled by the civil authorities."

Wheeler, who had a conference with President Coolidge at the White House, said the army and navy were not needed now, but declared "no one could doubt the wisdom of the example of George Washington in calling out the army to deal with the whiskey rebellion in 1793."

If the dry situation becomes uncontrollable, the precedent established by Washington would be "followed by whatever President occupied the White House," Wheeler predicted.

The chief object of his visit to the white House, Wheeler said, was to "warn" President Coolidge against the efforts to deluge Congress with 12,000,000 post cards, urging modification of the law to permit sale of beer and light wine.

The campaign has been proposed by the National Federal Alliance.

"That organization's barrage for beer and wine directed at the president and congress will be mostly brass band with a tiny parade following it," said Wheeler.

NEW PLAYERS SIGNED BY ORIGINAL SHAMROCKS

During the past week Manager McNally of the Original Shamrocks has signed up three new players in Buddy Ryan, Tommy Gilleane and Jim Holt. Both Ryan and Gilleane will play in forward positions, and any guard trying to stop them from scoring will have a tough task. The rest of the lineup will include Jack Robins, Tommy Davitt and Marty Carr. Whether this team will be kept intact during the season will all depend upon the playing these players will be able to show. The first game for the Shamrocks will probably be played at Monticello Saturday evening, October 31.

Dealmo Tells His Experience

Says he Bought Airplane in Indianapolis, Sailed it as Far as Utica, Where He Damaged Wing—How His Mother Got Conflicting Telegrams.

Edward Dealmo, who conducts a small newspaper shop at No. 76 Broadway, arrived home Monday evening and is relating today his experience in buying an airplane in Indianapolis. He also explains how his mother, Mrs. Frankie Markle, of No. 55 Hasbrouck avenue, received conflicting telegrams Monday morning.

According to Dealmo's story he left Kingston Saturday afternoon for Indianapolis intending to purchase a two passenger airplane, but he found that the cheapest one he could purchase cost a thousand dollars and he did not have money enough to invest that deeply.

However, according to his story, he did purchase a single plane for $250 and started to fly it home. He got as far as Utica, N. Y., and in landing the machine ran over the ground and one of the wings was broken when it came in contact with a post. He said that he left the machine there to have it repaired and came home by train, arriving here Monday evening.

He said that while in Indianapolis he met several other men there and gave them his address. He said that he believed the reason his mother received a telegram signed by Captain Williams on Monday morning was due to the fact that one of the flyers had an accident and his name and address was found in the man's pocket.

Dealmo said that he expected to go to Utica after the plane in a few days. He said that he learned to fly at Goshen and other places.

Air "Twister" Caused Terror in England

The first tornado in England of which there is any definite mention occurred nearly three centuries ago in Cheshire and Lancashire. Rotating or spiral storms, such as are comparatively frequent in western America, occur but seldom in Europe.

The "twister" of 1662 is thus described by a contemporary writer: "There arose a great pillar of smoke in height like a steeple and judged twenty yards broad, which, making a most hideous noise, went along the ground six or seven miles, leveling all in the way. It threw down fences and stone walls and carried the stones a great distance from their places, but happening upon moorish ground, not inhabited, it did less hurt.

"The terrible noise it made so frightened the cattle that they ran away, and were thereby preserved. It passed over a cornfield, and laid it as low with the ground as if it had been broken by feet.

"It went through a wood and turned up above a hundred trees by the roots; coming into a field of cocks of hay ready to be carried in, it swept all away, and left a great tree in the middle of the field, which it had brought from some other place. It overthrew a house or two, but the people that were in them received not much hurt, but the timber was carried away nobody knows whither."—Exchange.

Not the Only One

"I see you have furnished rooms," said the man who had rung the bell.

"Ya," rejoined the foreign woman, pointing to the window card, "dere's de sign."

"Well, if you have one that's suitable I'd like to rent it for a while."

"We do rents da rooms. My family take up all da house."

"Don't rent any? Why, then, have you that sign, 'Furnished Rooms,' in your window?"

"I'll tell you. Las' week dat woman next door she hang up a sign in her front window, and when I see dat I put up mine, just to show da people dat she ain't de only woman in dis place dat have her rooms furnished."

MAE MURRAY

Mae Murray, the brilliant movie star, was born in Portsmouth, Va. She moved to New York when a very small child. At the age of fifteen she made her first appearance on the stage and became one of the most remarkable dancers. At the height of her success on the stage she entered the pictures, and her many successes are well known.

THE WHY of SUPERSTITIONS

By H. IRVING KING

ACORNS AND LOVE

IT MAY surprise many people to know that in current superstitions there survive not only remnants of tree-worship, nature-worship, sun-worship, moon-worship, etc., which have been changed by the ages into formulas the origin and meaning of which those who use them are entirely ignorant, but that also there still remain open and direct appeals to the heathen gods who are invoked directly by name. Of this latter sort is superstition which is circulated largely throughout the country in nearly all those little paper-covered books dealing with dreams and charms which are so extensively consulted by the uneducated and, it must be owned, not infrequently "on the sly" by persons of intelligence and education. The superstition in question is a rite for discovering a young woman's future husband. An odd number of girls not exceeding nine assemble and each strings on a chord as many acorns as there are girls present. Then each girl places her string of acorns in the fire and watches it burn in silence. When the acorns are consumed each girl retires to her bed, saying as she gets between the sheets:

May love and marriage be the theme
To visit me in this night's dream;
Gentle Venus, be my friend,
The image of my lover send.

Then the young man whom she is destined to marry will appear to her in a dream. The use of the acorns is, of course, a remnant of tree-worship; an appeal to the oak, that great and popular tree god of our ancestors. They are offered to him, consumed by fire as upon an altar. The acorn has another ancient significance which cannot be gone into here which makes it an appropriate offering in such cases. So far the charm is a mere survival whose significance is entirely unsuspected by the practitioners of the rite. But then comes the direct appeal by name to Venus, the goddess of love of the old Roman mythology, word for word such as inquisitive maidens might have used it in the days when Aeneas "brought into Latium his gods."

"What's in a Name?"

By MILDRED MARSHALL

Facts about your name; its history; meaning; whence it was derived; significance; your lucky day, lucky jewel

UNA

THOUGH not in general usage, Una is one of the most interesting of feminine names. It means "famine," according to etymologists, though the great and only Spenser who brought the name into fashion rejected this interpretation. It is typically an Irish name and since it resembles "one," Spenser gave the title of Una to his lovely personation of the one truth, the one true undivided church, the guide of the Red Cross Knight.

Una is queen of the fairies in the county of Ormond, in which she appears in one version of the story of the soldier billeted on a miser. The man was amazed at his hospitable reception and entertainment as he thought by the avaricious squire, until morning disclosed the fact that Una had raised the mansion and provided the supper.

Una is much in use today among the Irish peasantry. It is often pronounced Oonagh and has been Anglicized as Winny.

The pearl is Una's talismanic gem. It is the emblem of purity, popularity and affability. She who wears it will have many friends and admirers. Tuesday is her lucky day and 5 her lucky number.

Bulgarians and Greeks Battle

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, Oct. 20.—Greek and Bulgarian detachments have engaged in a 13 hour battle on the frontier near Demirhissar, according to an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Athens this afternoon.

According to the Athens version Bulgars attacked a Greek outpost and killed a Greek official. A Greek captain carrying a white flag went out to parley with the Bulgars and was shot down. A general engagement followed.

The dispatch does not state the extent of the casualities.

For several months there have been sporadic outbursts on the Greece-Bulgar border which have constantly threatened to offer cause for a war between the two nations.

Bulgarians have claimed that many attacks laid to Bulgarians have been committed by bandits and that the government has used its utmost efforts to round up those forces.

Mendelssohn Club Elects Officers

Well Known Musical Organization to Bring Active Membership Up to Standard — Will Maintain Club Traditions.

The Mendelssohn Club has elected the following officers for the ensuing year: Frank Finley, president; Arthur C. Connelly, vice president; Frank Elmendorf, secretary; John T. R. Hall, treasurer. The club has also secured Harry P. Dodge as director for another year and Samuel D. Scudder, Jr., as accompanist.

Since its organization many years ago, the Mendelssohn Club has maintained a high standard of work for its members and its annual complimentary concerts have been considered the choicest musical entertainments of the year in Kingston. Each year the club has secured one or more well known artists to give variety to its concert program, and many of these artists have become celebrated in the musical world. The aim of the club always has been to provide musical entertainment of the highest quality, and its club work has been characterized by quality production.

The club is about to bring its active membership up to its standard, seeking voice quality that will maintain the traditions that have made the club unique among organizations of its kind. Charles B. Finch is chairman of the membership committee and men seeking membership in the club will be given a tryout upon application to him.

PLAYERS MENTIONED IN PROPOSED GIANTS-REDS DEAL

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Oct. 20.—Reports in circulation today were to the effect that the proposed deal between the New York Giants and the Cincinnati Reds had taken a new turn. It was said that the transaction now was to include Eddie Roush, star Cincinnati outfielder, and "Bubbles" Hargrave catcher, for George Kelly, Travis Jackson and Emil Meusel, of the Giants.

Do You Know Me?

I'm the gink who plays little tricks like untying your shoes, flipping your tie out of your vest and perhaps untying it if yours is a bow. Of course, I know such tricks are not humorous but annoying. They are irritating and cause a loss of time and temper. I can't understand why anyone should become angry at my little tricks. I get a tremendous kick out of them. Of course, you have to stop and refix your tie or shoe strings. When you do, I enjoy it and laugh. I become angry if it's done to me, but I do enjoy doing it myself.—New Orleans States.

Unit of Illumination

Candle power is the illuminating power of a lamp or flame as reckoned in terms of the light of a standard candle. The standard candle of the lighting engineer is one so made as to burn at the rate of 120 grains, or 7.8 grams, per hour. It is commonly of spermaceti. The unit of illumination is the candle meter, which is the illumination given by such a candle at a distance of one meter (39.37 inches). Great Britain does not usually employ the candle meter, but uses instead the candle foot—the standard candle's illumination at a distance of 12 inches.

A Great Victory, Says Chamberlain

British Foreign Minister Says Peace Has Conquered War in Referring to Security Pact—Berlin Press Also Praises the Pact Provisions.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Berlin, Oct. 20.—Optimism replaced the doleful tone of first comment on the Locarno accomplishments in the German press today, following publication of the text of the pacts.

While there still was a skeptical note in the comment of Nationalist organs, the Democratic Socialist newspapers were enthusiastic, praising the pact as forming a "great charter of European peace."

Paris, Oct. 20.—"There has been a great victory—peace has conquered war," said Austen Chamberlain, British foreign minister today as he left for London, highly gratified with the conclusion of the Locarno security pacts and their reception by the peoples of Europe.

The nations must now bend their efforts to instill the spirit of the security pacts into the hearts of their peoples, Chamberlain said, thus wiping out old hatreds.

French opinion was assured by Chamberlain's statement that the pacts assume the continuance of the Anglo-French entente.

Garcia Beat Kramer.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 20.—Bobby Garcia, army boxer from Baltimore, today was hailed as one of the most prominent contenders for the featherweight title as a result of his clean cut victory over Danny Kramer in ten rounds last night. Garcia permitted Kramer to wear himself down in the early rounds, then went to the pace in the sixth and led to the final bell.

Peeved

The big car was speeding through the village at a mild 45 miles an hour.

"Henry, dear," said the motorist's wife, "I don't think you ought to be driving so fast."

"Why not?" asked Henry in surprise.

"Well," explained his wife, "I have a feeling that the policeman who is shouting and running behind us doesn't exactly like it."—Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

Not in Class by Herself

Heaven has its troubles as well as earth, only Heaven does not worry about them so much as we do. This fact was revealed by Betty, who was getting into bed when mamma came to kiss her good-night. "And did you ask God to forgive you?" she asked, having in mind the little temper which Betty had shown during the evening. "Oh, yes, mamma," came the reply, "and God said it was all right. He had many little girls worser than me."—San Francisco Argonaut.

Fish Liars Realized They Were Outclassed

The story, "Trout by the Handful," that appeared in a recent number of the Companion reminds a subscriber of the following "tall" one that she often heard her grandfather tell:

At one time when my grandfather was on his way to Porto Rico he met on the boat a number of sportsmen, among whom was a doctor. They all gathered in the captain's cabin one night to swap yarns. With a serious face each told the biggest one he knew, and there were some pretty big ones. They had all finished and were about to vote to see who had told the biggest when the doctor, who had hitherto been silent, announced that he would tell a yarn himself. So they all settled back again to listen.

"Well," he began, "once when I was up in Canada where the big salmon fisheries and canneries are I happened on a little stream about a foot wide up which the salmon were going to spawn. The stream was so narrow and the fish so large that they could not pass one another, so they were going up the stream in single file with only a few inches between them.

"It looked like a good opportunity to get a big fish, so, straddling the stream, I reached down suddenly and caught a fish in my hands. I held it under the water a second to get a good hold before I jerked it out, and instantly the fish behind it bit its tail to make it hurry. I pulled my fish out of the water, and the other fish came too as well as the one behind it and the next one and so on. Each fish, you see, had hold of the tail of the one in front of it.

"I started pulling in hand over hand, and for three hours I stood there and pulled in fish. When I finished I had an unbroken string of salmon three miles long."

As he concluded the faces of his listeners were perfectly blank. They sat looking at one another in silence for a few minutes; then one of them rose and, going to the table, wrote something on an envelope. He passed the envelope round, and every one read and signed it. Then he ceremoniously presented it to the doctor, who, after reading it aloud pocketed it and bowed gravely.

This is what he read:

"This is to certify that we, the undersigned, hereby proclaim Doctor X—— to be the champion liar of this boat. We poor fellows thought we could tell 'em, but we resign in favor of the doctor."—Youth's Companion.

Playing the Game

From London comes the story of Sir James M. Barrie's first meeting with Robert Louis Stevenson. They were young men then, and strangers. Stevenson bumped Barrie on a street in Edinburgh. Barrie glared. Stevenson glowered.

"After all," he said, "God made me."

"He is getting careless," said Barrie.

Stevenson shifted his cane from one arm to the other.

"Do I know you?" he asked.

"No, but I wish you did," said Barrie.

"Let's pretend that I do," suggested Stevenson—and arm-in-arm they started for a tavern.—Collier's Weekly.

What Am I?

I have scattered breadcrusts, tin cans, Sunday supplements, paper plates, paper bags, chicken bones and fruit skins from the wilds of Maine to the tip of Florida.

I have hacked forest trees and left campfires burning from the California coast to the Atlantic seaboard.

I have booked apples from New England orchards, walnuts from the Willamette valley and oranges from our southern states.

I have rolled rocks into the sapphire depths of Crater lake and thrown tin cans into gurgling brooks in every state in the Union.

I have seen all, heard all, know all and in my weak way have destroyed much.

I am the American tourist who thrown careless and thoughtless acts britain dishonor to responsible, respectable and careful fellow travelers—Old Colony Memorial.

Largest Snake

So far as we can ascertain, says the Washington Star, the largest snake exhibited in the New York Zoological park was one shown about ten years ago. This was a python from the Malay peninsula, weighing 365 pounds and measuring 24 feet in length. At the present time the Washington zoo is exhibiting a 25-foot python, but weighing less than the one mentioned.
